(c) REIMBURSEMENT OF CERTAIN EXPENSES.—If, in accordance with Annex 2002.2 of the Agreement, the Canadian Section or the Mexican Section of the Secretariat provides funds to the United States Section during any fiscal year, as reimbursement for expenses by the Canadian Section or the Mexican Section in connection with settlement proceedings under chapter 19 or 20 of the Agreement, the United States Section may retain and use such funds to carry out the functions described in subsection (a).

SEC. 106. APPOINTMENTS TO CHAPTER 20 PANEL PROCEEDINGS.

“(3) SUSPENSION RESULTING FROM NAFTA.—On the date the United States and Canada agree to suspend the operation of the Agreement by reason of the entry into force between them of the North American Free Trade Agreement, the following provisions of this Act are suspended and shall remain suspended until such time as the suspension of the Agreement may be terminated:

(a) IN GENERAL.—Section 101(a) may not be construed as conferring Congressional approval of the entry into force of the Agreement for the United States with respect to countries other than Canada and Mexico.

(b) FUTURE FREE TRADE AREA NEGOTIATIONS.—

(1) FINDINGS.—The Congress makes the following findings:

(A) Efforts by the United States to obtain greater market opening through multilateral negotiations have not produced agreements that fully satisfy the trade negotiating objectives of the United States.

(B) United States trade policy should provide for additional mechanisms with which to pursue greater market access for United States exports of goods and services and opportunities for export-related investment by United States persons.

(C) Among the additional mechanisms should be a system of bilateral and multilateral trade agreements that provide greater market access for United States exports and opportunities for export-related investment by United States persons.

(D) The system of trade agreements can and should be structured to be consistent with, and complementary to, existing international obligations of the United States and ongoing multilateral efforts to open markets.

(2) REPORT ON SIGNIFICANT MARKET OPENING.—No later than May 1, 1994, and May 1, 1997, the Trade Representative shall submit to the President, and to the Committee on Finance of the Senate and the Committee on Ways and Means of the House of Representatives (hereafter in this section referred to as the “appropriate Congressional committees”), a report which lists those foreign countries—

(A) that—

(i) currently provide fair and equitable market access for United States exports of goods and services and opportunities for export-related investment by United States persons, beyond what is required by existing multilateral trade agreements or obligations; or

(ii) have made significant progress in opening their markets to United States exports of goods and services and export-related investment by United States persons; and

(B) the further opening of whose markets has the greatest potential to increase United States exports of goods and services and export-related investment by United States persons, either directly or through the establishment of a beneficial precedent.

(3) PRESIDENTIAL DETERMINATION.—The President, on the basis of the report submitted by the Trade Representative under paragraph (2), shall determine with which foreign country or countries, if any, the United States should seek to negotiate a free trade area agreement or agreements.

H. R. 3450—11

(4) RECOMMENDATIONS ON FUTURE FREE TRADE AREA NEGOTIATIONS.—No later than July 1, 1994, and July 1, 1997, the President shall submit to the appropriate Congressional committees a written report that contains—

(A) recommendations for free trade area negotiations with each foreign country selected under paragraph (3);

(B) with respect to each country selected, the specific negotiating objectives that are necessary to meet the objectives of the United States under this section; and

(C) legislative proposals to ensure adequate consultation with the Congress and the private sector during the negotiations, advance Congressional approval of the negotiations recommended by the President, and Congressional approval of any trade agreement entered into by the President as a result of the negotiations.

(5) GENERAL NEGOTIATING OBJECTIVES.—The general negotiating objectives of the United States under this section are to obtain—

(A) preferential treatment for United States goods;

(B) national treatment and, where appropriate, equivalent competitive opportunity for United States services and foreign direct investment by United States persons;

(C) the elimination of barriers to trade in goods and services by United States persons through standards, testing, labeling, and certification requirements;

(D) nondiscriminatory government procurement policies and practices with respect to United States goods and services;

(E) the elimination of other barriers to market access for United States goods and services, and the elimination of barriers to foreign direct investment by United States persons;

(F) the elimination of acts, policies, and practices which deny fair and equitable market opportunities, including foreign government toleration of anticompetitive business practices by private firms or among private firms that have the effect of restricting, on a basis that is inconsistent with commercial considerations, purchasing by such firms of United States goods and services;

(G) adequate and effective protection of intellectual property rights of United States persons, and fair and equitable market access for United States persons that rely upon intellectual property protection;

(H) the elimination of foreign export and domestic subsidies that distort international trade in United States goods and services or cause material injury to United States industries;

(I) the elimination of all export taxes;

(J) the elimination of acts, policies, and practices which constitute export targeting; and

(K) monitoring and effective dispute settlement mechanisms to facilitate compliance with the matters described in subparagraphs (A) through (J).

SEC. 109. EFFECTIVE DATES; EFFECT OF TERMINATION OF NAFTA STATUS.

(c) CONVERSION TO AD VALOREM RATES FOR CERTAIN TEXTILES.—For purposes of subsections (a) and (b), with respect to an article covered by Annex 300–B of the Agreement imported from Mexico for which the base rate in the Schedule of the United States in Annex 300–B is a specific or compound rate of duty, the President may substitute for the base rate an ad valorem rate that the President determines to be equivalent to the base rate.

SEC. 202. RULES OF ORIGIN.*(a) ORIGINATING GOODS.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—For purposes of implementing the tariff treatment and quantitative restrictions provided for under the Agreement, except as otherwise provided in this section, a good originates in the territory of a NAFTA country if—

(A) the good is wholly obtained or produced entirely in the territory of one or more of the NAFTA countries;

(B)(i) each nonoriginating material used in the production of the good—

(I) undergoes an applicable change in tariff classification set out in Annex 401 of the Agreement as a result of production occurring entirely in the territory of one or more of the NAFTA countries; or

(II) where no change in tariff classification is required, the good otherwise satisfies the applicable requirements of such Annex; and

(ii) the good satisfies all other applicable requirements of this section;

(C) the good is produced entirely in the territory of one or more of the NAFTA countries exclusively from originating materials; or

(D) except for a good provided for in chapters 61 through 63 of the HTS, the good is produced entirely in the territory of one or more of the NAFTA countries, but one or more of the nonoriginating materials, that are provided for as parts under the HTS and are used in the production of the good, does not undergo a change in tariff classification because—

(i) the good was imported into the territory of a NAFTA country in an unassembled or a disassembled form but was classified as an assembled good pursuant to General Rule of Interpretation 2(a) of the HTS; or

(ii)(I) the heading for the good provides for and specifically describes both the good itself and its parts and is not further subdivided into subheadings; or

(II) the subheading for the good provides for and specifically describes both the good itself and its parts.

(2) SPECIAL RULES.—

(A) FOREIGN-TRADE ZONES.—Subparagraph (B) of paragraph (1) shall not apply to a good produced in a foreign-trade zone or subzone (established pursuant to the Act of June 18, 1934, commonly known as the Foreign Trade Zones Act) that is entered for consumption in the customs territory of the United States.

(B) REGIONAL VALUE-CONTENT REQUIREMENT.—For purposes of subparagraph (D) of paragraph (1), a good shall be treated as originating in a NAFTA country if the regional value-content of the good, determined in accordance with subsection (b), is not less than 60 percent where the transaction value method is used, or not less than

50 percent where the net cost method is used, and the good satisfies all other applicable requirements of this section.

(b) REGIONAL VALUE-CONTENT.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—Except as provided in paragraph (5), the regional value-content of a good shall be calculated, at the choice of the exporter or producer of the good, on the basis of—

(A) the transaction value method described in paragraph (2); or

(B) the net cost method described in paragraph (3).

(2) TRANSACTION VALUE METHOD.—

(A) IN GENERAL.—An exporter or producer may calculate the regional value-content of a good on the basis of the following transaction value method:

$$\text{RVC} = \frac{\text{TV}-\text{VNM}}{\text{TV}} \times 100$$

(B) DEFINITIONS.—For purposes of subparagraph (A):

(i) The term “RVC” means the regional value-content, expressed as a percentage.

(ii) The term “TV” means the transaction value of the good adjusted to a F.O.B. basis.

(iii) The term “VNM” means the value of nonoriginating materials used by the producer in the production of the good.

(3) NET COST METHOD.—

(A) IN GENERAL.—An exporter or producer may calculate the regional value-content of a good on the basis of the following net cost method:

$$\text{RVC} = \frac{\text{NC}-\text{VNM}}{\text{NC}} \times 100$$

(B) DEFINITIONS.—For purposes of subparagraph (A):

(i) The term “RVC” means the regional value-content, expressed as a percentage.

(ii) The term “NC” means the net cost of the good.

(iii) The term “VNM” means the value of nonoriginating materials used by the producer in the production of the good.

(4) VALUE OF NONORIGINATING MATERIALS USED IN ORIGINATING MATERIALS.—Except as provided in subsection (c)(1), and for a motor vehicle identified in subsection (c)(2) or a component identified in Annex 403.2 of the Agreement, the value of nonoriginating materials used by the producer in the production of a good shall not, for purposes of calculating the regional value-content of the good under paragraph (2) or (3), include the value of nonoriginating materials used to produce originating materials that are subsequently used in the production of the good.

H. R. 3450—15

(5) NET COST METHOD MUST BE USED IN CERTAIN CASES.—An exporter or producer shall calculate the regional value-content of a good solely on the basis of the net cost method described in paragraph (3), if—

- (A) there is no transaction value for the good;
- (B) the transaction value of the good is unacceptable under Article 1 of the Customs Valuation Code;
- (C) the good is sold by the producer to a related person and the volume, by units of quantity, of sales of identical or similar goods to related persons during the six-month period immediately preceding the month in which the good is sold exceeds 85 percent of the producer's total sales of such goods during that period;
- (D) the good is—
  - (i) a motor vehicle provided for in heading 8701 or 8702, subheadings 8703.21 through 8703.90, or heading 8704, 8705, or 8706;
  - (ii) identified in Annex 403.1 or 403.2 of the Agreement and is for use in a motor vehicle provided for in heading 8701 or 8702, subheadings 8703.21 through 8703.90, or heading 8704, 8705, or 8706;
  - (iii) provided for in subheadings 6401.10 through 6406.10; or
  - (iv) a word processing machine provided for in subheading 8469.10.00;
- (E) the exporter or producer chooses to accumulate the regional value-content of the good in accordance with subsection (d); or
- (F) the good is designated as an intermediate material under paragraph (10) and is subject to a regional value-content requirement.

(6) NET COST METHOD ALLOWED FOR ADJUSTMENTS.—If an exporter or producer of a good calculates the regional value-content of the good on the basis of the transaction value method and a NAFTA country subsequently notifies the exporter or producer, during the course of a verification conducted in accordance with chapter 5 of the Agreement, that the transaction value of the good or the value of any material used in the production of the good must be adjusted or is unacceptable under Article 1 of the Customs Valuation Code, the exporter or producer may calculate the regional value-content of the good on the basis of the net cost method.

(7) REVIEW OF ADJUSTMENT.—Nothing in paragraph (6) shall be construed to prevent any review or appeal available in accordance with article 510 of the Agreement with respect to an adjustment to or a rejection of—

- (A) the transaction value of a good; or
- (B) the value of any material used in the production of a good.

(8) CALCULATING NET COST.—The producer may, consistent with regulations implementing this section, calculate the net cost of a good under paragraph (3), by—

- (A) calculating the total cost incurred with respect to all goods produced by that producer, subtracting any sales promotion, marketing and after-sales service costs, royalties, shipping and packing costs, and nonallowable interest costs that are included in the total cost of all such goods, and reasonably allocating the resulting net cost of those goods to the good;

(B) calculating the total cost incurred with respect to all goods produced by that producer, reasonably allocating the total cost to the good, and subtracting any sales promotion, marketing and after-sales service costs, royalties, shipping and packing costs, and nonallowable interest costs that are included in the portion of the total cost allocated to the good; or

(C) reasonably allocating each cost that is part of the total cost incurred with respect to the good so that the aggregate of these costs does not include any sales promotion, marketing and after-sales service costs, royalties, shipping and packing costs, or nonallowable interest costs.

(9) VALUE OF MATERIAL USED IN PRODUCTION.—Except as provided in paragraph (11), the value of a material used in the production of a good—

(A) shall—

(i) be the transaction value of the material determined in accordance with Article 1 of the Customs Valuation Code; or

(ii) in the event that there is no transaction value or the transaction value of the material is unacceptable under Article 1 of the Customs Valuation Code, be determined in accordance with Articles 2 through 7 of the Customs Valuation Code; and

(B) if not included under clause (i) or (ii) of subparagraph (A), shall include—

(i) freight, insurance, packing, and all other costs incurred in transporting the material to the location of the producer;

(ii) duties, taxes, and customs brokerage fees paid on the material in the territory of one or more of the NAFTA countries; and

(iii) the cost of waste and spoilage resulting from the use of the material in the production of the good, less the value of renewable scrap or by-product.

(10) INTERMEDIATE MATERIAL.—Except for goods described in subsection (c)(1), any self-produced material, other than a component identified in Annex 403.2 of the Agreement, that is used in the production of a good may be designated by the producer of the good as an intermediate material for the purpose of calculating the regional value-content of the good under paragraph (2) or (3); provided that if the intermediate material is subject to a regional value-content requirement, no other self-produced material that is subject to a regional value-content requirement and is used in the production of the intermediate material may be designated by the producer as an intermediate material.

(11) VALUE OF INTERMEDIATE MATERIAL.—The value of an intermediate material shall be—

(A) the total cost incurred with respect to all goods produced by the producer of the good that can be reasonably allocated to the intermediate material; or

(B) the aggregate of each cost that is part of the total cost incurred with respect to the intermediate material that can be reasonably allocated to that intermediate material.

H. R. 3450—17

(12) INDIRECT MATERIAL.—The value of an indirect material shall be based on the Generally Accepted Accounting Principles applicable in the territory of the NAFTA country in which the good is produced.

(c) AUTOMOTIVE GOODS.—

(1) PASSENGER VEHICLES AND LIGHT TRUCKS, AND THEIR AUTOMOTIVE PARTS.—For purposes of calculating the regional value-content under the net cost method for—

(A) a good that is a motor vehicle for the transport of 15 or fewer persons provided for in subheading 8702.10.00 or 8702.90.00, or a motor vehicle provided for in subheadings 8703.21 through 8703.90, or subheading 8704.21 or 8704.31, or

(B) a good provided for in the tariff provisions listed in Annex 403.1 of the Agreement, that is subject to a regional value-content requirement and is for use as original equipment in the production of a motor vehicle for the transport of 15 or fewer persons provided for in subheading 8702.10.00 or 8702.90.00, or a motor vehicle provided for in subheadings 8703.21 through 8703.90, or subheading 8704.21 or 8704.31, the value of nonoriginating materials used by the producer in the production of the good shall be the sum of the values of all nonoriginating materials, determined in accordance with subsection (b)(9) at the time the nonoriginating materials are received by the first person in the territory of a NAFTA country who takes title to them, that are imported from outside the territories of the NAFTA countries under the tariff provisions listed in Annex 403.1 of the Agreement and are used in the production of the good or that are used in the production of any material used in the production of the good.

(2) OTHER VEHICLES AND THEIR AUTOMOTIVE PARTS.—For purposes of calculating the regional value-content under the net cost method for a good that is a motor vehicle provided for in heading 8701, subheading 8704.10, 8704.22, 8704.23, 8704.32, or 8704.90, or heading 8705 or 8706, a motor vehicle for the transport of 16 or more persons provided for in subheading 8702.10.00 or 8702.90.00, or a component identified in Annex 403.2 of the Agreement for use as original equipment in the production of the motor vehicle, the value of nonoriginating materials used by the producer in the production of the good shall be the sum of—

(A) for each material used by the producer listed in Annex 403.2 of the Agreement, whether or not produced by the producer, at the choice of the producer and determined in accordance with subsection (b), either—

(i) the value of such material that is nonoriginating, or

(ii) the value of nonoriginating materials used in the production of such material; and

(B) the value of any other nonoriginating material used by the producer that is not listed in Annex 403.2 of the Agreement determined in accordance with subsection (b).

(3) AVERAGING PERMITTED.—

H. R. 3450—18

(A) IN GENERAL.—For purposes of calculating the regional value-content of a motor vehicle described in paragraph (1) or (2), the producer may average its calculation over its fiscal year, using any of the categories described in subparagraph (B), on the basis of either all motor vehicles in the category or on the basis of only the motor vehicles in the category that are exported to the territory of one or more of the other NAFTA countries.

(B) CATEGORY DESCRIBED.—A category is described in this subparagraph if it is—

- (i) the same model line of motor vehicles in the same class of vehicles produced in the same plant in the territory of a NAFTA country;
- (ii) the same class of motor vehicles produced in the same plant in the territory of a NAFTA country;
- (iii) the same model line of motor vehicles produced in the territory of a NAFTA country; or
- (iv) if applicable, the basis set out in Annex 403.3 of the Agreement.

(4) ANNEX 403.1 AND ANNEX 403.2.—For purposes of calculating the regional value-content for any or all goods provided for in a tariff provision listed in Annex 403.1 of the Agreement, or a component or material identified in Annex 403.2 of the Agreement, produced in the same plant, the producer of the good may—

(A) average its calculation—

- (i) over the fiscal year of the motor vehicle producer to whom the good is sold;
- (ii) over any quarter or month; or
- (iii) over its fiscal year, if the good is sold as an aftermarket part;

(B) calculate the average referred to in subparagraph

(A) separately for any or all goods sold to one or more motor vehicle producers; or

(C) with respect to any calculation under this paragraph, make a separate calculation for goods that are exported to the territory of one or more NAFTA countries.

(5) PHASE-IN OF REGIONAL VALUE-CONTENT REQUIREMENT.—Notwithstanding Annex 401 of the Agreement, and except as provided in paragraph (6), the regional value-content requirement shall be—

(A) for a producer's fiscal year beginning on the day closest to January 1, 1998, and thereafter, 56 percent calculated under the net cost method, and for a producer's fiscal year beginning on the day closest to January 1, 2002, and thereafter, 62.5 percent calculated under the net cost method, for—

- (i) a good that is a motor vehicle for the transport of 15 or fewer persons provided for in subheading 8702.10.00 or 8702.90.00, or a motor vehicle provided for in subheadings 8703.21 through 8703.90, or subheading 8704.21 or 8704.31; and

- (ii) a good provided for in heading 8407 or 8408, or subheading 8708.40, that is for use in a motor vehicle identified in clause (i); and

(B) for a producer's fiscal year beginning on the day closest to January 1, 1998, and thereafter, 55 percent calculated under the net cost method, and for a producer's fiscal year beginning on the day closest to January 1, 2002, and thereafter, 60 percent calculated under the net cost method, for—

(i) a good that is a motor vehicle provided for in heading 8701, subheading 8704.10, 8704.22, 8704.23, 8704.32, or 8704.90, or heading 8705 or 8706, or a motor vehicle for the transport of 16 or more persons provided for in subheading 8702.10.00 or 8702.90.00;

(ii) a good provided for in heading 8407 or 8408, or subheading 8708.40 that is for use in a motor vehicle identified in clause (i); and

(iii) except for a good identified in subparagraph (A)(ii) or a good provided for in subheadings 8482.10 through 8482.80, or subheading 8483.20 or 8483.30, a good identified in Annex 403.1 of the Agreement that is subject to a regional value-content requirement and is for use in a motor vehicle identified in subparagraph (A)(i) or (B)(i).

(6) NEW AND REFITTED PLANTS.—The regional value-content requirement for a motor vehicle identified in paragraph (1) or (2) shall be—

(A) 50 percent for 5 years after the date on which the first motor vehicle prototype is produced in a plant by a motor vehicle assembler, if—

(i) it is a motor vehicle of a class, or marque, or, except for a motor vehicle identified in paragraph (2), size category and underbody, not previously produced by the motor vehicle assembler in the territory of any of the NAFTA countries;

(ii) the plant consists of a new building in which the motor vehicle is assembled; and

(iii) the plant contains substantially all new machinery that is used in the assembly of the motor vehicle; or

(B) 50 percent for 2 years after the date on which the first motor vehicle prototype is produced at a plant following a refit, if it is a motor vehicle of a class, or marque, or, except for a motor vehicle identified in paragraph (2), size category and underbody, different from that assembled by the motor vehicle assembler in the plant before the refit.

(7) ELECTION FOR CERTAIN VEHICLES FROM CANADA.—In the case of goods provided for in subheadings 8703.21 through 8703.90, or subheading 8704.21 or 8704.31, exported from Canada directly to the United States, and entered on or after January 1, 1989, and before the date of entry into force of the Agreement between the United States and Canada, an importer may elect to use the rules of origin set out in this section in lieu of the rules of origin contained in section 202 of the United States-Canada Free-Trade Agreement Implementation Act of 1988 (19 U.S.C. 2112 note) and may elect to use the method for calculating the value of nonoriginating materials established in article 403(2) of the Agreement in lieu of the method established in article 403(1) of the Agreement for purposes of determining eligibility for preferential duty treatment under the United States-Canada

H. R. 3450—20

Free-Trade Agreement. Any election under this paragraph shall be made in writing to the Customs Service not later than the date that is 180 days after the date of entry into force of the Agreement between the United States and Canada. Any such election may be made only if the liquidation of such entry has not become final. For purposes of averaging the calculation of regional value-content for the goods covered by such entry, where the producer's 1989–1990 fiscal year began after January 1, 1989, the producer may include the period between January 1, 1989, and the beginning of its first fiscal year after January 1, 1989, as part of fiscal year 1989–1990.

(d) ACCUMULATION.—

(1) DETERMINATION OF ORIGINATING GOOD.—For purposes of determining whether a good is an originating good, the production of the good in the territory of one or more of the NAFTA countries by one or more producers shall, at the choice of the exporter or producer of the good, be considered to have been performed in the territory of any of the NAFTA countries by that exporter or producer, if—

(A) all nonoriginating materials used in the production of the good undergo an applicable tariff classification change set out in Annex 401 of the Agreement;

(B) the good satisfies any applicable regional value-content requirement; and

(C) the good satisfies all other applicable requirements of this section.

The requirements of subparagraphs (A) and (B) must be satisfied entirely in the territory of one or more of the NAFTA countries.

The import relief recommended by the International Trade Commission under this subsection shall be limited to that described in section 304(c).

(1) is provided for in an item for which the transition period of tariff elimination set out in the United States Schedule to Annex 302.2 of the Agreement is greater than 10 years; and

(2) the President determines that the affected industry has undertaken adjustment and requires an extension of the period of the import relief;

the President, after obtaining the advice of the International Trade Commission, may extend the period of the import relief for not more than 1 year, if the duty applied during the initial period of the relief is substantially reduced at the beginning of the extension period.

SEC. 311. NAFTA ARTICLE IMPACT IN IMPORT RELIEF CASES UNDER THE TRADE ACT OF 1974.

(a) IN GENERAL.—If, in any investigation initiated under chapter 1 of title II of the Trade Act of 1974, the International Trade Commission makes an affirmative determination (or a determination which the President may treat as an affirmative determination under such chapter by reason of section 330(d) of the Tariff Act of 1930), the International Trade Commission shall also find (and report to the President at the time such injury determination is submitted to the President) whether—

(1) imports of the article from a NAFTA country, considered individually, account for a substantial share of total imports; and

(2) imports of the article from a NAFTA country, considered individually or, in exceptional circumstances, imports from NAFTA countries considered collectively, contribute importantly to the serious injury, or threat thereof, caused by imports.

(b) FACTORS.—

(1) SUBSTANTIAL IMPORT SHARE.—In determining whether imports from a NAFTA country, considered individually, account for a substantial share of total imports, such imports normally shall not be considered to account for a substantial share of total imports if that country is not among the top 5 suppliers of the article subject to the investigation, measured in terms of import share during the most recent 3-year period.

(2) APPLICATION OF “CONTRIBUTE IMPORTANTLY” STANDARD.—In determining whether imports from a NAFTA country or countries contribute importantly to the serious injury, or threat thereof, the International Trade Commission shall consider such factors as the change in the import share of the NAFTA country or countries, and the level and change in the level of imports of such country or countries. In applying the preceding sentence, imports from a NAFTA country or countries normally shall not be considered to contribute importantly to serious injury, or the threat thereof, if the growth rate of imports from such country or countries during the period in which an injurious increase in imports occurred is appreciably lower than the growth rate of total imports from all sources over the same period.

(c) DEFINITION.—For purposes of this section and section 312(a), the term “contribute importantly” refers to an important cause, but not necessarily the most important cause.

(2) imports from a NAFTA country, considered individually, or in exceptional circumstances imports from NAFTA countries considered collectively, contribute importantly to the serious injury, or threat thereof, found by the International Trade Commission.

(b) EXCLUSION OF NAFTA IMPORTS.—In determining the nature and extent of action to be taken under chapter 1 of title II of the Trade Act of 1974, the President shall exclude from such action imports from a NAFTA country if the President makes a negative determination under subsection (a) (1) or (2) with respect to imports from such country.

(c) ACTION AFTER EXCLUSION OF NAFTA COUNTRY IMPORTS.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—If the President, under subsection (b), excludes imports from a NAFTA country or countries from action under chapter 1 of title II of the Trade Act of 1974 but thereafter determines that a surge in imports from that country or countries is undermining the effectiveness of the action—

(A) the President may take appropriate action under such chapter 1 to include those imports in the action; and

(B) any entity that is representative of an industry for which such action is being taken may request the International Trade Commission to conduct an investigation of the surge in such imports.

The International Trade Commission shall submit the findings of its investigation to the President no later than 30 days after the request is received by the International Trade Commission.

(3) DEFINITION.—For purposes of this subsection, the term “surge” means a significant increase in imports over the trend for a recent representative base period.

(d) CONDITION APPLICABLE TO QUANTITATIVE RESTRICTIONS.—Any action taken under this section proclaiming a quantitative restriction shall permit the importation of a quantity or value of the article which is not less than the quantity or value of such article imported into the United States during the most recent period that is representative of imports of such article, with allowance for reasonable growth.

(1) Trade in motor vehicles and motor vehicle parts is one of the most restricted areas of trade between the United States and Mexico.

(4) The United States automotive industry has estimated that United States exports of motor vehicles to Mexico should increase to more than 60,000 units during the first year of the Agreement's implementation, which is substantially above the current level of 4,000 units.

(b) TRADE REPRESENTATIVE REPORT.—No later than July 1, 1995, and annually thereafter through 1999, the Trade Representative shall submit a report to the Committee on Finance of the Senate and the Committee on Ways and Means of the House of Representatives on how effective the provisions of the Agreement are with respect to increasing United States exports of motor vehicles and motor vehicle parts to Mexico. “(5) MISCELLANEOUS PROVISIONS.—For purposes of this subsection—

“(A) any reference to a private laboratory includes a reference to a private gauger; and

“(B) accreditation of private laboratories extends only to the performance of functions by such laboratories that are within the scope of those responsibilities for determinations of the elements relating to admissibility, quantity, composition, or characteristics of imported merchandise that are vested in, or delegated to, the Customs Service.

“(c) DETENTIONS.—Except in the case of merchandise with respect to which the determination of admissibility is vested in an agency other than the Customs Service, the following apply:

“(1) IN GENERAL.—Within the 5-day period (excluding weekends and holidays) following the date on which merchandise is presented for customs examination, the Customs Service shall decide whether to release or detain the merchandise. Merchandise which is not released within such 5-day period shall be considered to be detained merchandise.

“(4) SEIZURE AND FORFEITURE.—If otherwise provided by law, detained merchandise may be seized and forfeited.

“(5) EFFECT OF FAILURE TO MAKE DETERMINATION.—

“(A) The failure by the Customs Service to make a final determination with respect to the admissibility of detained merchandise within 30 days after the merchandise has been presented for customs examination, or such longer period if specifically authorized by law, shall be treated as a decision of the Customs Service to exclude the merchandise for purposes of section 514(a)(4).

“(B) For purposes of section 1581 of title 28, United States Code, a protest against the decision to exclude the merchandise which has not been allowed or denied in whole or in part before the 30th day after the day on which the protest was filed shall be treated as having been denied on such 30th day.

“(C) Notwithstanding section 2639 of title 28, United States Code, once an action respecting a detention is commenced, unless the Customs Service establishes by a preponderance of the evidence that an admissibility decision has not been reached for good cause, the court shall grant the appropriate relief which may include, but is not limited to, an order to cancel the detention and release the merchandise.”.

(b) EXISTING LABORATORIES.—Accreditation under section 499(b) of the Tariff Act of 1930 (as added by subsection (a)) is not required for any private laboratory (including any gauger) that was accredited or approved by the Customs Service as of the day before the date of the enactment of this Act; but any such laboratory is subject to reaccreditation under the provisions of such section and the regulations promulgated thereunder.

The trademark examining attorney has carefully reviewed applicant's request for reconsideration and is denying the request for the reasons stated below. See 37 C.F.R. §2.63(b)(3); TMEP §§715.03(a)(ii)(B), 715.04(a). The following requirement(s) and/or refusal(s) made final in the Office action dated July 18,

Final Descriptiveness Refusal/Refusal on Supplemental Register Maintained and Continued

The examining attorney issued a FINAL refusal on the Supplemental Register because the proposed mark, MAGNESITA, is generic or in the alternative highly descriptive with respect to the goods and services listed in the application. The goods and services are "Refractory products not made primarily of metal, namely, refractory bricks, refractory mixes for patching, lining or repairing high temperature apparatus and repairing the lining for furnaces, refractory furnace patching and repair mix" and "Providing information via a global computer network on constructing, maintaining, and repairing refractory apparatus using refractory products." The final refusal is maintained and continued.

The applicant claims that the examining attorney abused her discretion by using a proper translation of the word MAGNESITA. The examining attorney has not abused her discretion at all. She is merely following TMEP §1209.03(g) which states "the foreign equivalent of a merely descriptive English word is no more registrable than the English word itself. "[A] word taken from a well-known foreign modern language, which is, itself, descriptive of a product, will be so considered when it is attempted to be registered as a trade-mark in the United States for the same product.” In re N. Paper Mills, 64 F.2d 998, 1002, 17 USPQ 492, 493 (C.C.P.A. 1933). See In re Tokutake Indus. Co., 87 USPQ2d 1697 (TTAB 2008) (AYUMI and its Japanese-character equivalent held merely descriptive for footwear where the evidence, including applicant's own admissions, indicated that the primary meaning of applicant's mark is “walking”); In re Oriental Daily News, Inc., 230 USPQ 637 (TTAB 1986) (Chinese characters that mean ORIENTAL DAILY NEWS held merely descriptive of newspapers); In re Geo. A. Hormel & Co., 227 USPQ 813 (TTAB 1985) (SAPORITO, an Italian word meaning “tasty,” held merely descriptive because it describes a desirable characteristic of applicant’s dry sausage).”

The applicant’s attorney conducted a search of over 25 websites for refractory goods using MAGNESITA as the search term which resulted in no hits on any of the websites. However, the examining attorney conducted a search of magnesite or magnesia which is the translation of MAGNESITA.

First, the examining attorney directs the applicant’s attention to the first attachment to this office action ISPAT GURU. Magnesia, Magnesite and Magnesium Oxide are used interchangeably.

The word magnesite literally refers only to the natural mineral, but common usage applies this name to three other types of materials, dead burned magnesia (DBM), electro fused magnesia and calcined magnesia also called caustic calcined magnesia. Often magnesia word is replaced by magnesite in these products. These products of magnesite often differ mainly in density and crystal development that results from different levels of heat application.

The examining attorney conducted a search of the websites the applicant mentions in its response. For example, the Zicoa.com website may not have “magnesita” listed as an input in its refractory products. However, the website does state that magnesia is a component in its Zicoa backup products. On the website Firebrickengineers.com, “magnesita” is not mentioned but magnesia is mentioned as a component of its Ladlemax products. The Mineraltec.com website does not list “magnesita” as a component of any of the goods but MgO the chemical symbol for magnesium oxide is listed as a component of the applicant’s goods.

The examining attorney also conducted further research on some refractory products and attaches several companies’ product information sheets. The Mt. Savage Firebrick lists Magnesium Oxide as a component of the goods. Guidon lists its goods as “burned fused grain magnesite.” Pilbrico’s, Pilcast lists MgO as a component of the goods. Morgan ThermalCeramics describes their goods as “a high purity cast magnesia.”

The examining attorney looked at all the websites and many did not actually produce refractory products. For example, the website for the Edward Orton Jr. Ceramic Foundation states that it provides products for “thermal process verification, thermo-analytical instruments and materials testing services.” The applicant is related to the refractory products industry but does not actually produce refractory bricks or other refractory products.

Elgin Butler produces ceramic glazed masonry products such as ceramic tiles. The goods are not for lining the inside of kilns and other high temperature operations but are for construction applications.

Miami Stone Installers are a construction company that installs granite countertops, builds brick and stone walls and builds fireplaces. This company does not produce refractory products.

Finally, the applicant included three large retailers that sell one or two refractory items, Lowe’s, Home Depot and Wal-Mart. None of these companies are in the business of producing refractory products.

For the above reasons, the applicant’s request for reconsideration is denied and the FINAL refusals under Section 2(e)(1) and under Section 23 are maintained and continued.

MAGNESIA

POSTED BY SATYENDRA ON JAN 19, 2015 IN ISPAT DIGEST | 0 COMMENTS

Magnesia

Magnesia or magnesium oxide (MgO) is a white hygroscopic solid mineral that occurs naturally as periclase. It forms magnesium hydroxide in the presence of water ( $MgO + H_2O \rightarrow Mg(OH)_2$ ). But this reaction can be reversed by heating magnesium hydroxide to separate moisture.

Magnesium (Mg) is the eighth most abundant element and constitutes about 2 percent of the crust of the earth. It is the third most plentiful element dissolved in seawater, with a concentration averaging 0.13 %. Although magnesium is found in over 60 minerals, only dolomite, magnesite, brucite, carnallite, and olivine are of commercial importance. Magnesium and magnesium compounds are produced from seawater, unit and lake brines and bitterns, as well as from the above mentioned minerals.

Magnesite ( $MgCO_3$ ), the naturally occurring carbonate of magnesium (Mg) is one of the key natural sources for the production of magnesia ( $MgO$ ) and subsequently fused magnesia. It is the world's largest source of magnesia. It contains a theoretical maximum magnesia content of 37.5 %. It occurs in two distinct physical forms namely (i) macro-crystalline and (ii) crypto-crystalline. Crypto-crystalline magnesia is generally of a higher purity than macro-crystalline one, but tends to occur in smaller deposits than the macro-crystalline form.

The word magnesia literally refers only to the natural mineral, but common usage applies this name to three other types of materials, dead burned magnesia (DBM), electro fused magnesia and calcined magnesia also called caustic calcined magnesia. Often magnesia word is replaced by magnesite in these products. These products of magnesite often differ mainly in density and crystal development that results from different levels of heat application. The three products of magnesite are shown in Fig 1.

Magnesia is an alkaline earth metal oxide. Magnesium oxide is normally produced by the calcinations of naturally occurring minerals mainly magnesite. Other important sources of magnesium oxide are seawater, underground deposits of brine and deep salt beds from which magnesium hydroxide is processed. The general properties of magnesia is given in Tab 1.

Magnesia is a refractory material which is physically and chemically stable at high temperatures. Refractory industry is the largest consumer of magnesia worldwide.

The terms dead burned magnesia (DBM), electro fused magnesia (EFM), or refractory magnesia are used predominantly in the refractory industry where they are mainly used to make shaped and unshaped products to line high temperature vessels such as furnaces and kilns in the steel, cement, non-ferrous, glass and chemical industries. The terms refer to the granular product produced by firing of magnesite, magnesium hydroxide, or another material reducible to magnesia at temperatures which normally exceeds 1500 deg C. The heating process is to be of sufficiently long duration to produce a dense, reasonably weather stable granule for use in manufacturing refractory materials.

Dead burned magnesia (often called dead burnt) is used almost exclusively for refractory applications in the form of basic bricks and granular refractories. Dead burned magnesia has the highest melting point of all common refractory oxides and is the most suitable heat resistant material for high temperature processes in the steel industry. Basic magnesia bricks are used in furnaces, ladles and secondary refining vessels. Electro fused magnesia is superior to dead burned magnesia in strength, abrasion resistance and chemical stability.

The terms high grade and high purity generally refer to a refractory magnesia containing more than 96 % MgO, a density greater than 3.30 g/cc, preferably 3.40 g/cc, and a proper relationship of auxiliary oxides.

Magnesia is used in the steel industry as a refractory brick impregnated with tar, pitch, graphite etc to give optimum properties for corrosion resistance in environments of basic slags. Calcined magnesite is used in steel making to modify the properties of steel making slags during steel making as well as to change slag characteristics for slag splashing in BOF vessels. The main application of magnesite is in steel refractories with more than 70 % of all type of magnesite refractories used in steel production and continuous casting operations.

High grade DBM and EFM are used mainly in bricks/shapes to produce the following refractories:

- Magnesite carbon bricks
- Magnesite bricks
- Magnesite chrome bricks
- Magnesite sinter bricks
- Magnesite alumina bricks
- Magnesite carbon alumina bricks

DBM is mostly used in the manufacture of basic monolithic refractories such as galling repair products, finished working linings and precast shapes (finished dams/liners). Applications for sintered magnesite include isostatic pressed shapes and flow control systems (sliding gate plates etc).

High grade magnesite for refractory applications is classified according to purity (MgO content), bulk specific gravity (BSG), periclase crystal size (PCS) and CaO/SiO<sub>2</sub> ratio. When the grain size of the magnesite crystal is large then its stability is very good. Typically high grade DBM for the steel industry requires MgO content of 97 % minimum, BSG of 3.80 minimum, PCS of 100 microns minimum and CaO/SiO<sub>2</sub> ratio of 2.0 minimum.

The addition of fused magnesite grains can greatly enhance the performance and durability of basic refractories such as mag carbon bricks. This is a function of a higher bulk specific gravity and large periclase crystal size, plus reassignment of accessory silicates. Refractory grade fused magnesite has exacting specifications and is normally characterized by the following:

- Generally high magnesite content (minimum 87 % MgO and up to/exceeding 95 % MgO)
- Low silica which means high lime to silica ratio of 4 minimum
- Densities of 2.50 g/cm<sup>3</sup> or more
- Large periclase crystal sizes (1000 microns minimum)

Due to its relatively high chemical stability, strength and resistance to abrasion as well as excellent corrosion resistance, refractory grade fused magnesite is used in high wear areas in steel making. Lower grade EFM is also used in refractory bricks and shapes. EFM also has high thermal conductivity.

Calcined magnesite is normally graded according to purity, sizing and reactivity. Most of the calcined magnesite produced has MgO content ranging from 85 % to 95 %. It has a loss of ignition (LOI) value of less than 10 % and has a high reactivity which means that it has got high absorbing capacity for water vapour and CO<sub>2</sub>.

Historically the main global producers of high grade DBM have been based on synthetic technology converting magnesium rich seawater or lime into magnesite. The only natural high grade DBM producers are Turkey and Australia which are based on cryptocrystalline magnesite deposits.

Production process for calcined magnesite, DBM, and EFM

MgO is produced by the calcination of MgCO<sub>3</sub> or Mg(OH)<sub>2</sub> or by the treatment of magnesium chloride with lime followed by heat. Calcining at different temperatures produces magnesium oxide with different reactivity. High temperatures (1500 deg C to 2000 deg C) produces dead-burned magnesite, an unreactive form used as a refractory. Calcining temperatures (1000 deg C to 1500 deg C) produces hard-burned magnesite which has limited reactivity while lower temperature (700 deg C to 1000 deg C) calcining produces light-burned magnesite, a reactive form, which is called calcined magnesite.

Magnesite is converted into magnesite by the application of heat which drives off carbon dioxide (CO<sub>2</sub>) thereby converting the carbonate to the oxide of magnesium (MgO).

Magnesite, from both natural sources (primarily magnesite) and synthetic sources (seawater, natural brines or deep sea salt brine), is converted into calcined magnesite by calcining at between 700 deg C and 1000 deg C, driving off most of the contained CO<sub>2</sub>. Calcined magnesite is both an end product and an intermediary step in the chain of magnesite products.

Further calcining of magnesite at higher temperatures between 1500 deg to 2000 deg C results in the largely inert product, dead-burned magnesite. Heating to this level drives off all but a small fraction of the remaining CO<sub>2</sub> to produce a hard crystalline non reactive form of magnesium oxide known as periclase. Dead-burned magnesite exhibits exceptional dimensional stability and strength at high temperatures.

This is a general guide to the alumina brick products available from RESCO Products. These bricks are manufactured with the highest quality materials at ISO-certified plants, using modern

SPC procedures. The brick are formulated and shaped to meet the high temperature and corrosive conditions present in the production of industrial goods-from aggregate materials and primary metals to complex hydrocarbon chemicals used throughout the world.

EXTRA HIGH ALUMINA BRICK

KRICOR · RESCAL 90 XD

These unique 90+% alumina brick are made from tabular alumina with a mullite matrix. They are characterized by high resistance to slag attack, low porosity and permeability, high hot strength and density, resistance to severe abrasion and excellent dimensional stability. These mullite bonded 90% alumina refractories are used in the working linings of coreless and channel induction furnaces.

Other applications include: Carbon black reactors · Ceramic kiln linings · High temperature chemical and waste incinerators · Induction furnace linings, skid rails, and SRU linings.

DURA-TAB CA

DURA-TAB CA is a burned, phosphate-bonded 90% alumina-chrome brick. Compared to mullitebonded 90% alumina brick, it offers exceptional service against highly aggressive furnace slag.

DURA-TAB SC

DURATAB SC is a unique product that combines silicon carbide with high purity alumina to produce a refractory possessing exceptional resistance to very aggressive furnace slag associated with induction furnaces processing molten iron, and which is quite resistant to thermal shock. DURATAB SC is recommended for use in the slag lines of iron melting furnaces.

<http://www.firebrickengineers.com/refractory.asp> 02/10/2018 07:25:28 AM

KRITAB -RESCAL 10 CR -RESCAL 10 CR SR

All of these brick are alumina-chrome-solid solution-bonded 90% alumina brick. These brick are truly solid solution-bonded brick; the matrix consists of a solid solution of chromic oxide and alumina which results in extra hot load resistance and ability to withstand high temperature chemical attacks. The silica-free bonding system and neutral chemistry offer excellent resistance to erosion/corrosion from iron oxide-silica rich slags. They can be used in severe corrosion areas of channel type induction furnaces and any other applications where load-bearing and corrosion resistance are critical factors. They are recommended for the slag line of arc holding furnaces, carbon black reactors and incinerators. The 10 CR SR is the spall resistant product of the alumina-chrome family.

DURA-TAB

DURATAB is a 95% alumina mullite-bonded brick.

HIGH ALUMINA BRICK FOR ALUMINUM CONTACT

LO-SIL SUPER

Among the many refractories developed for aluminum melting furnaces, this 90% alumina brick with non-wetting additive stands out for its exceptional resistance to attack by molten aluminum.

LO-SIL SUPER is ideal in furnace linings for the production of hard alloys. LO-SIL SUPER brick minimize silicon pick-up and furnace downtime; they preserve the quality of the molten alloy.

Their hardness and high modulus of rupture give the brick lining excellent resistance to impact and abrasion.

FURNAL HS and RESCAL 80 BP (Burned)

These two product are ideal choices for molten aluminum contact in melting and holding furnaces. They perform well in aluminum furnaces with high mechanical wear and abuse. Both are bauxite-based, burned 85% alumina brick with superior hot and cold strengths. Their non-wetting matrix and high strengths make either an ideal choice for melting or holding furnaces, especially those utilizing heavy cold charges.

FURNAL and RESCAL 80 PA (Baked)

FURNAL and RESCAL 80 PA are 85% alumina, phosphate containing baked brick, each with a unique non-wetting matrix, which minimizes silicon pickup and facilitates fast and easy furnace cleaning. They are strong and can withstand the severe mechanical abrasive conditions encountered in today's aluminum furnaces. Dimensional stability and exacting manufacturing tolerances assure fast, long lasting installations. Both products recommended for metal contact with a broad range of aluminum alloys.

MARELAN PLANT

High Alumina Brick-Alkali and Creep Resistant

The alkali and creep resistant KRIAL brick are high purity, low alkali products based on high purity aluminas, calcined bauxitic kaolins, and high grade andalusite. Designed originally for use in blast furnaces and blast furnace stoves due to their low creep rate and carbon monoxide resistance, several of these products have also flourished in other markets including glass furnace regenerators and carbon anode baking furnaces. All of the brands listed on this page give an "A" rating in the ASTM carbon monoxide (CO) disintegration test.

KRIAL 50-A

KRIAL 50-A has a combination of creep resistance, dimensional stability, resistance to chemical attack and thermal conductivity which make it ideally suited for heat exchange applications. Its high purity micro structure with a low glass content and a high amount of mullite is extremely creep and spall resistant. It can withstand higher operating temperatures than typical low flux super duty brick. It is an ideal product for use in high-efficiency, thin-wall blast furnace stove checkers. It is also an excellent choice for all areas of carbon anode baking furnaces where its refractoriness and superior mechanical properties are essential. Its matrix mineralogy is very resistant to the destructive silica depletion caused by fluorine attack. KRIAL 50-A offers the baking pit operator the opportunity to improve productivity by significantly raising firing temperatures and reducing cycle times.

KRIAL 60

KRIAL 60 is a low alkali, low porosity brick with outstanding hot strength. Its superior resistance to thermal shock, abrasion and alkali attack help make it the most effective solution for a variety of severe applications. KRIAL 60 has been

<http://www.firebrickengineers.com/refractory.asp> 02/10/2015 07:55:26 AM

cost effective solution for a variety of severe applications. KRIAL® 60 has seen extensive service in blast furnace stack linings and is highly recommended for use in torpedo ladles, chemical and waste incinerators and as tie brick in carbon anode baking furnaces.

KRIAL 60-A +

KRIAL 60-A+ is the primary answer for blast furnace and blast furnace stove applications requiring a low flux 60% alumina product. KRIAL 60-A+ is a low porosity, high strength product and has become the choice for most thin wall stove checker applications. It has been quite successful in blast furnace stack linings and torpedo ladles.

KRIAL 65-A

KRIAL 65-A is recommended for use in the highest temperature areas of blast furnace stoves. It is extremely creep resistant at 2730° F and is primarily utilized in the uppermost checkers and dome of the stove. KRIAL 65-A is andalusite-based and provides all the benefits of high fired mullite products. It's matrix has an exceptionally low glass content.

KRIMUL

KRIMUL is an ultrahigh purity, low flux brick that provides the maximum resistance to hot load deformation and creep in the 60% alumina product range. This andalusite-based brick satisfies all ASTM requirements for classification as a mullite refractory. Its outstanding load bearing properties at 2550° F qualify it for severe blast furnace stove and hot blast main applications. Also, its resistance to low basicity slag make it a natural choice for torpedo ladles. KRIMUL has good abrasion and thermal shock resistance and has performed well in glass furnace regenerators due to its excellent resistance to alkali attack.

RESIN-BONDED ALUMINA-CARBON

Tundish Refractories

Tundish Spray Coating - Ferrocon SGS Series

FERROCON SGS series, sprayable coating material is a proven performer for tundish wear lining. Quick and clean desludging property is the key success function of Ferrocon SGS series.

The technology for pneumatic placement of insulating refractories has led to the development of the Ferrocon SGS Series Spray Products. This concept has gained worldwide acceptance in many billet, bloom and slab casting facilities as a result of its simple operation.

It has led to lower labor costs because of the decrease in installation time. The system occupies less space, thus is applicable for even the most congested tundish assembly areas. Ferrocon SGS can be applied with zero rebound to any tundish regardless of geometry.

It can be sprayed on any refractory surface up to 900°C, which enables the steelmaker to utilize residual heat in the tundish helping to cure the lining. Consumption can be optimized by placing less material in low erosion zones.

Ferrocon SGS is designed to adhere to the steel skull – not the tundish – which makes skull removal a safe, simple procedure.

Tundish Boards and Mixes - Ferrocon and FCM Series

FERROCON Tundish Boards are designed and manufactured both in magnesia and silica compositions to match specific steel production needs.

More than 10 million tons of steel per year is continuously being cast through Ferrocon tundish boards.

FERROCON-MgO is engineered to withstand ultralong sequences of high performance meltshops.

With increasingly sophisticated end use for tundish liner products, Ferrocon MgO performances such as 51 heats of 82 tons ladle lasting 76 hours, 73 heats of 100 tons ladle lasting 63 hours and many other ultralong sequence lengths are achieved with full confidence. Ferrocon MgO is tailor made with variable thicknesses and densities as well as unique slag line support system according to tundish design and application.

Selected raw material, thorough research, rigid process control result in the consistent quality of Ferrocon MgO tundish boards. With Ferrocon MgO, back-up lining is prolonged and tundish deslagging is an easy and simple procedure.

FERROCON-Silica is engineered in different densities from standard type to the premium MULTIPOUR to completely match the liner to user application.

Carbon and low alloy steels with less than 1.2 % manganese are routinely cast with Ferrocon Silica boards.

Ferrocon Silica offers the most economic solution for low sequence casting, which does not exceed 10 hours.

In addition to the full spectrum of liner boards, FCM series sealing mortar and ramming mixes produced both in silica and magnesia base to match the liner components are available to complete the full installation of each tundish lining.

Tundish Castables - Ferrocast Series

FERROCAST Tundish Permanent Lining Package:

Asmag has complete facilities and thorough experience for offering tundish permanent lining package. The total package includes Ferrocast castables for permanent lining, insulation lining, anchor bolts, as well as, the necessary equipment and machinery for installation, such as the template, vibrators, and material mixer. Supervision and application can be provided, if it is required.

The Ferrocast tundish package becomes steelmakers' number one choice to install their tundishes at the plant start-up phases. The Ferrocast tundish package is available for single tundish relines to complete tundishes new lining.

FERROCAST is a low cement vibratable castable, uniquely designed for permanent lining of tundishes. Alumina content can be adjustable between 60 to 85 percent to match customer needs. Ferrocast's excellent physical and chemical properties and its resistance to thermal shocks provide a safe and long lasting lining for tundishes.

Tundish Turnures and Shapes - Caston Series
CASTON tundish shapes are designed in specific shapes and manufactured in magnesite, alumina or alumina spinel qualities according to tundish requirements.

Target boxes, delta box, impact pads, dams, weirs, baffles, nozzle cones, well blocks are manufactured with superior physical and chemical properties for safe casting and clean steel production.

Precast shapes, when combined with Ferrocon wear lining, exhibits an outstanding performance for tundish long sequences and contributes to steel cleanliness for any steel grade production.

Ready to use tundish lids are a new approach to tundish covers with precise production including molding, casting and drying. Durable tundish lids are manufactured to withstand mechanical and thermal stresses during operation.

Isostatic Refractories - Ferroflow Series

Asmas has recently developed its own Isostatic Refractory Technology for Tundish flow protection and control applications. Asmas is still the sole supplier of isostatic refractory products in Turkey and uses the FERROFLOW brand name for its product series.

Isostatic pressing of carbon bonded refractory oxides is a technology that allows complex designs in refractories for some special applications. These special applications are usually classified in two main groups, such as protection of the stream, and controlling the liquid steel flow from tundish to mold. The FERROFLOW products are widely used for quality, safety, life and alloy considerations.

Ladle Shield (LS), is used for the protection of the steel stream from ladle to tundish. The connection of LS is done to the collective nozzle of the Ladle-Slide Gate with the help of a manipulator. The LS has a submerged entry to the steel bath in the Tundish. Primarily, LS application will prevent the re-oxidation of the steel, reduce the Nitrogen pickup, improve steel cleanliness and create a safer environment by eliminating splashing. There are also some secondary benefits, such as less consumption of the tundish covering compound, less tundish heat loss and less radiation from Tundish to Ladle.

Ringside Rod (SR), is used to control the steel flow from the Tundish to the Mold. The SR is fixed into the Tundish on the casting stand with the help of a steel rod, fixed into the SR, and connected to manipulator arm, which can control the SR with upward-downward movements. The SR control mechanism can be manual controlled or automatic-driven. The SR acts on the wet area of either a Tundish Nozzle (TN) or a Submerged Nozzle (SN), which are both pouring directly out from the tundish. Under the TN, a type Tundish Shield (TS) has to be used. The TN to TS connection can be done with various possible methods, such as either direct refractory coaxial connection or with the help of an exchange mechanism. Depending on the connection method, TS may have different sizes and connections from the TN to the mold. Several models are designed according to customer needs. The SN is a ring, one-piece solution to allow the submerged flow directly into the mold from the Tundish.

Please contact Asmas engineers or specialists for innovative, suitable designs and quality for your applications.

II. STATEMENT OF THE ISSUE

Whether the final Office Action dated July 18, 2014, is correct in asserting that the present mark MAGNESITA (word without design or stylization) is generic with respect to the goods:

Class 19: Refractory products not made primarily of metal, namely, refractory bricks, refractory mixes for patching, lining or repairing high temperature apparatus and repairing the lining for furnaces, refractory furnace patching and repair mixes.

The Office has conceded that the mark MAGNESITA (word without design or stylization) is not generic for the services:

Class 37: Providing information via a global computer network on constructing, maintaining, and repairing refractory apparatus using refractory products.

The Office Action dated May 27, 2014, expressly states that the “amendment to the Supplemental Register is acceptable for the services named in International Class 37.”

APPLICANT'S BRIEF
U.S. Application No. 77873477

IV. ARGUMENT

A. THE STANDARD OF REVIEW.

In ex parte cases, the question is simply “whether or not, based on the record before the examiner, the examiner's action was correct.” In re Bose Corp., 772 F.2d 866, 869, 227 USPQ 1 (Fed. Cir. 1985). See also In re AFG Industries, Inc., 17 U.S.P.Q.2d 1162 (TTAB 1990) (In determining an ex parte appeal, the Appeal Board's sole task is “to determine if the refusal to register was correctly made.” Id. at 1163).

B. THE EXAMINING ATTORNEY HAS NOT ESTABLISHED CLEAR EVIDENCE TO SHOW GENERICNESS OF THE MARK.

The present refusal is based on the statutory provision that requires the mark to be “capable of distinguishing the applicant’s goods and services.” 15 U.S.C. §1091(c) (2005). In view of such statute, the Patent and Trademark Office (PTO) has indicated that generic terms are “incapable of functioning as registrable trademarks denoting source, and are not registrable on the Principal Register under §2(f) or on the Supplemental Register.” (TMEP § 1209.01(c)).

In proving genericness, the Office has the difficult burden of proving the refusal with “clear evidence” of genericness. In re Interfashion U.S.A., Inc., 2006 WL 3147914 * 2 (TTAB 2006) (non-precedential) (citing In re Merrill, Lynch, Pierce, Fenner & Smith, Inc., 828 F.2d 1567, 4 USPQ2d 1141, 1143 (Fed. Cir. 1987)); see also In re Steelbuilding.com, 415 F.3d 1293, 1296, 75 USPQ2d 1420 (Fed. Cir. 2005). The critical issue in genericness cases is whether members of the relevant public primarily use or understand the term sought to be registered to refer to the genus or category of goods in question. In re Interfashion U.S.A., Inc., 2006 WL 3147914 * 3 (citing H. Marvin Ginn Corp. v. International Ass’n of Fire Chiefs, Inc., 782 F.2d 987, 228 USPQ 528 (Fed. Cir. 1986)). In making this determination, courts follow the following two-step inquiry: 1) What is the genus or category of good or services at issue? and 2) Is the designation sought to be registered understood by the relevant public primarily to refer to that genus or category of goods or services? H. Marvin Ginn Corp., 782 F.2d 987, 228 USPQ 528. Doubt on the issue of genericness is resolved in favor of the applicant. In re Interfashion U.S.A., Inc., 2006 WL 3147914 * 3 (citing In re Waverly Inc., 27 USPQ2d 1620, 1624 (TTAB 1993)). In this case, Applicant submits that the Examiner has failed to establish by clear evidence that the mark “MAGNESITA” is understood by the relevant public to be generic by primarily referring to the class of goods at issue, i.e., refractory products not made primarily of metal.

1. THE CATEGORY OF THE GOODS AT ISSUE IS REFRACTORY PRODUCTS.

In determining the first step of genericness, Applicant submits that the category of goods at issue is refractory products. Specifically, as amended in the response filed September 20, 2013 and suggested by the Examining Attorney in the Denial of the Request for Reconsideration of February 26, 2015, the goods are “Refractory products not made primarily of metal, namely, refractory bricks, refractory mixes for patching, lining or repairing high temperature apparatus and repairing the lining for furnaces, refractory furnace patching and repair mix.”

APPLICANT'S BRIEF
U.S. Application No. 77873477

2. THE RELEVANT PUBLIC WOULD NOT UNDERSTAND THE WORD “MAGNESITA” TO REFER TO REFRACTORY PRODUCTS.

The Examining Attorney has failed to properly identify the relevant public and provide clear evidence that the relevant public primarily refers to refractory products by the present mark. In determining the second step of the genericness determination, the court must identify the relevant public by identifying who actually or potentially purchases or consumes the goods, and whether members of the relevant public primarily use or understand the term sought to be protected to refer to the genus of goods or services in question. See H. Marvin Ginn Corp., 782 F.2d at 989; Magic Wand, Inc. v. RDB, Inc., 940 F.2d 638, 641, 19 USPQ2d 1552 (Fed. Cir. 1991); see also TMEP § 1209.01(c). In this case, the Examining Attorney has not established that the relevant public would have understood the mark “MAGNESITA” as primarily referring to refractory products.

Although the Examining Attorney suggests in the Final Action of July 18, 2014 that the relevant public are people who work in the refractory industry and purchase refractory products on a regular basis, the Examining Attorney has not provided clear evidence to support this conclusion. Rather, as discussed in the Request for Reconsideration filed December 17, 2014, Applicant submits that the relevant public is not the narrow field of people who work in the refractory industry and purchase refractory products on a regular basis, but rather the general public. Specifically, since the relevant public for a genericness determination is the actual or potential purchaser of the goods, the relevant public in this case is any actual or potential purchaser of refractory products, which in this case is the general public. See Magic Wand, Inc., 940 F.2d at 641. For example, as seen in Exhibits AA to EE, to the Declaration About Generic Terms on Web Pages, the refractory products are sold by the well-known retailers Lowe’s, Home Depot, Walmart, and Amazon to the general public (Dec. ¶ 30-34). Therefore, as is clear from the plain reading of the identification of goods in Class 19, the refractory products are not limited to a particular group of customers, but to any actual or potential purchaser of “[r]efractory products not made primarily of metal, namely, refractory bricks, refractory mixes for patching, lining or repairing high temperature apparatus and repairing the lining of furnaces, refractory furnace patching and repair mixes.” In other words, since any doubt on the issue of genericness is resolved in favor of the applicant, Applicant submits that the relevant public in this genericness determination is the general public, since the general public actually or potentially purchases the refractory products. See In re Interfashion U.S.A., Inc., 2006 WL 3147914 * 3.

Next, although the Examining Attorney suggests that since magnesia and magnesite may be used in the goods, the ingredient may be generic for the goods, Applicant submits that the test for genericness is not whether any ingredient may be generic for those goods, but rather, whether the relevant public would primarily use or understand the term sought to be protected to refer to the genus of goods in question. See H. Marvin Ginn Corp., 782 F.2d at 991.

In H. Marvin Ginn Corp., the registrar registered the mark to “a magazine directed to the field of fire fighting.” H. Marvin Ginn Corp., 782 F.2d at 991. The Federal Circuit indicated that it did not discern any record evidence which suggests “that the relevant portion of the public refers to a class of fire fighting publications as ‘Fire Chief.’” Id. (emphasis added). Therefore, the Federal Circuit concluded that the TTAB clearly erred in finding the mark directed to the field of fire fighting to be generic. Id.

In the present appeal, not only has the Examining Attorney admitted in the Final Action of July 18, 2014, that “the public at large would not necessarily understand that the term MAGNESITA translates to magnesia or magnesite,” the Examining Attorney has not provided record evidence to suggest that the term “MAGNESITA” primarily refers to the class of refractory product not made primarily of metal. Rather, as evidenced by Exhibits A to AJ filed with the Request for Reconsideration of December 17, 2014, the relevant public would have understood that the terms “fire brick” and “refractory brick” are generic terms directed to different goods in the cited class (Dec. ¶ 4-39). Applicant, however, does not observe and the Examining Attorney has not provided clear evidence that the relevant public would have understood the term “MAGNESITA” to be generic to primarily refer to refractory products.

APPLICANT'S BRIEF

Moreover, even assuming arguendo that the relevant public are people who work in the refractory industry and purchase refractory products, and that they would understand that the term “MAGNESITA” means magnesite or magnesia, Applicant submits that the Examining Attorney has not provided clear evidence to show that the relevant public used or would have understood the term “MAGNESITA” to primarily refer to refractory products.

Applicant submits that the present goods are not magnesia or magnesite, where magnesite has the chemical formula  $MgCO_3$  and is used to produce magnesia having the chemical formula  $MgO$ . The present goods are “refractory products not made primarily of metal.” While some of these refractory products may comprise magnesite, magnesite is a compound in Class 1 and not in Class 19. In other words, while magnesia and magnesite are generic terms to identify minerals, the Examining Attorney has not provided clear evidence to establish that magnesia and magnesite are generic terms to primarily identify refractory products. See In re Interfashion U.S.A., Inc., 2006 WL 3147914 *3 (“The two references to “Oat Straw” hair care preparations which appear to be generic in nature do not constitute a clear or substantial showing of generic use.”)

The Examining Attorney has not provided any evidence that the relevant public uses the term “MAGNESITA” to refer to the refractory brick or any refractory product. See In re Minnetonka, Inc., 3 USPQ2d 1711, 1987 WL 124303 * 3 (TTAB 1987) (“This body of evidence is persuasive, and the Examining Attorney does not claim otherwise, to show that there exists a fairly substantial number of competitors in the business of selling liquid hand soap; that none of these competitors uses the term ‘soft soap’ descriptively, generically or otherwise in connection with its product.”) At most, the Examining Attorney has established magnesia can be used as a component of the goods sold on various websites, e.g. refractory brick, lining, etc. For example, as seen in the Mt. Savage Firebrick Tech Data for Fireclay provided by the Examining Attorney on February 26, 2015, Fireclay has only 0.89% of MgO and is primarily composed of Silica (SiO<sub>2</sub>) and Alumina (Al<sub>2</sub>O<sub>3</sub>) (at page 28 of the Office Action). Similarly, as seen in the printed web-page for Fire Brick Engineers Company, the refractory alumina brick has various concentrations of magnesia, but primarily contains alumina (at page 12 and following of the Office Action). What the Examining Attorney has failed to establish by clear evidence, however, is that the relevant public uses the terms magnesia or magnesite to primarily refer to the class of refractory product. See In re Interfashion U.S.A., Inc., 2006 WL 3147914 *4 (“In this case, however, we are not convinced from the evidence of record that prospective purchasers would understand AVENA to refer to a principal or key ingredient in applicant’s hair care preparations.”) That is, Applicant does not observe the necessary clear evidence to establish that the relevant public uses the terms magnesia and magnesite, let alone the term “MAGNESITA,” to primarily refer to the refractory brick or lining, i.e., the record lacks clear evidence that shows that the relevant public uses the terms magnesia or magnesite to primarily refer to the refractory brick or lining being sold.

Furthermore, Applicant submits that the meaning of “MAGNESITA” should be evaluated on the basis of the lack of definition from the Merriam-Webster Unabridged Dictionary (filed December 15, 2011) and not based on the translation, as suggested by the Examining Attorney. The use of a translation is inappropriate under, and unjustified, by current case law.

As discussed in the Request for Reconsideration filed December 17, 2014, the relevant public would have understood that the term “MAGNESITA” is not generic, as shown in Exhibits A to AJ to the “Declaration About Generic Terms on Web Pages,” as stated above.

Applicant submits that the Examining Attorney has failed to establish by clear evidence that the relevant public uses the term “MAGNESITA” to primarily refer to refractory products and only has established that magnesia and magnesite can be used as a component of refractory brick or lining.

APPLICANT'S BRIEF
U.S. Application No. 77873477

V. SUMMARY

Applicant respectfully submits that the application should be approved for registration because the mark "MAGNESITA" is not generic for the recited goods in the present application. Specifically, the term "MAGNESITA" is not understood by the relevant public, i.e., the general public, to primarily refer to the glass of goods at issue, i.e., refractory product not made primarily of metal... Moreover, the Examiner Attorney has not met the difficult burden to show the genericness of the mark "MAGNESITA" with respect to refractory products not made primarily of metal. Therefore, Applicant respectfully submits that the mark "MAGNESITA" is not generic and should be registered on the Supplemental Register.

Respectfully submitted,

/Thomas J. Moore/

Request for Reconsideration after Final Action

To the Commissioner for Trademarks:

Application serial no. 85834316 MAGNESITA(Standard Characters, see <http://tsdr.uspto.gov/img/85834316/large>) has been amended as follows:

ARGUMENT(S)

In response to the substantive refusal(s), please note the following:

The final Office Action alleges that Applicant's evidence of acquired distinctiveness is insufficient. Applicant maintains that the evidence is in full compliance with the statute and regulations, but in order to expedite the application, submits herewith additional evidence.

The Declaration About Exclusive Use reflects the review of numerous websites that market refractory products, and shows that "Magnesita" is not used by others.

The Declaration of Gross Sales in 2014 states that the gross sales of refractory products in association with the trademark MAGNESITA were in excess of US$220,000,000 in 2014.

The date of first use is amended to October, 2008. This is reflected by the attached Exhibit A, which is an article titled "Magnesita buys LWB" in the October, 2008, edition of Industrial Minerals.

Applicant submits that the additional evidence of acquired distinctiveness is sufficient to approve the Section 2(f) claim.

Applicant submits that the application should be approved for publication.

NEWS AT THE CORE

LEADING BRAZILIAN MAGNESITE producer, Magnesita Refratários SA, has acquired Germany based refractory dolomite producer, LWB Refractories GmbH, creating the third largest refractories group (by revenue) in the world, after Vesuvius and RHI AG (see table).

Magnesita's deal with Rhone Capital LLC, a private equity group with majority shareholdings in LWB, includes $392m. cash and Magnesita assuming a $538m. debt.

The move is seen as part of Magnesita's expansion plan to target customers outside its core market in South America to the global market, focusing on LWB's client base in China, Europe and the USA.

"This is a milestone in Magnesita's strategy to accelerate its international growth," said Ronaldo Iabrudi, chief executive officer of Magnesita.

In Brazil, Magnesita controls 70% of the steel refractories market and 80% of the cement refractories market, while the majority of LWB's sales are in Europe and the USA. Magnesita expects the acquisition of LWB will result in a wider spread of customers across a broad geographical base in South America, Europe, and the USA (see chart).

LWB leads world refractory dolomite production with an estimated 260-280,000 tpa combined capacity in Europe, sourcing dolomite raw material from mines in Belgium and Germany, and a further 150,000 tpa refractory dolomite from its York, Pennsylvania operation in the USA. It also runs a 55,000 tpa refractory dolomite plant in Chizhou, Anhui province, China.

"The LWB expansion gives us the opportunity for considerable growth in China, where we plan to double capacity of the existing LWB refractories plants to 180,000 tpa," said Iabrudi.

Magnesita also intends to

Brazil's leading magnesite producer acquires German dolomite and refractories group, gaining a global customer base and raw material supply

by Kwok W Wan, Assistant Editor

increase magnesite production to meet demands in Asia.

Maurício Lustosa de Castro, chief financial officer of Magnesita, told IM: "To supply Asian clients with the amount of products they are demanding, we will have to make strong investments at Brumado mine [in north-east Brazil] in order to increase the production capacity currently at 320,000 tpa."

LWB has an overall refractory products manufacturing capacity of 700,000 tpa, with manufacturing facilities in China, France, Germany, and the USA. The total H1 2008 refractories output from both companies was 1.1 m. tonnes.

No.1 by 2012

Magnesita believes the deal will have nearly no overlaps in terms of sales, but plenty of scope for raw material and upstream integrations.

"[There will be] no other company like ours in the refractory industry," said Castro, in a conference call.

According to Castro, LWB consumes 80-100,000 tpa of sintered or electro fused magnesite and accounts for 18% of sales, which Magnesita could now supply. Magnesita also manufactures dolomite products, so could now exploit LWB's raw material reserves in Europe and the USA.

Magnesita's upstream synergy plans could involve combining LWB's magnesite operations into Magnesita's Brazilian plants, while LWB facilities focus solely on dolomite products. It estimates synergies could save $35.5m. per annum.

The acquisition will also allow Magnesita to offer a range of magnesite and dolomite products to its combined customer base, including large clients currently supplied by LWB, but not by Magnesita and vice versa. These include LWB's long established relationships with stainless and carbon steel producers.

"[It's an] awesome opportunity for cross selling," said Castro.

Magnesita has set targets to be the largest refractories producer (by revenue) in the world by 2012. Domestic refractories demand is expected to be driven by the Brazilian steel industry, with steel demand predicted to grow by 13% this year according to the Brazilian Steel Institute.

Securing feedstock

The world's second largest refractories producer, Vienna based RHI, has also revealed intentions to expand via acquisitions, with focus on mineral producers.

"We have several projects under consideration," said Andreas Meier, RHI chief executive officer, adding: "A key area in this context is raw materials, not only magnesite and dolomite, but also bauxite and melting raw materials."

RHI and Tata Refractories Ltd have already announced magnesite projects in China, in an attempt to secure supplies (see p.8). Magnesita's acquisition of LWB is the Brazilian's first foray into China in terms of raw materials.

Before this deal, Magnesita was recently secured by GP Investments Ltd (see IM September '07, p.29) and had announced plans to triple dead burned magnesita capacity (DBM; currently 320,000 tpa) and double refractories production (currently 590,000 tpa; see IM September '08, p.28).

DBM accounts for 10% of Magnesita's sales and the company believes demand is strong, representing a good opportunity. "Even if we see a slight slowdown in steel demand growth, refractories demand is still set for significant growth," said Iabrudi of Magnesita.

Supplies of magnesite have been tight as the world's leading producer, China, has used licences and quotas to reduce exports of the refractory mineral. This has led to a raft of producers outside China announcing capacity expansions to meet demand (see IM September '08, p.28).

Refractory Brick Engineered for Mortar-free and Self-supporting Structures in High Temperature Cycling Environments

Refractory Bricks are engineered to satisfy your specific insulating or melting requirements and deliver long term service. Calcia or yttria stabilized Zirconium Oxide pressed or tongue and groove bricks stand-up to temperatures of 2300°C and beyond. Composition Markets served include: quartz and laser crystal growth, glass, refractory metals, carbon black and high temperature furnaces.

REFRACTORY BRICK - TONGUE AND GROOVE

Zircor's tongue and groove bricks are designed for the building of self-supporting structures. Their design and calcia or yttria stabilized zirconia composition makes them ideal for high temperature cycling environments.

Using Zircor's tongue and groove brick eliminates line of sight radiation, and adds physical stability to the structure. Rings and circles, with an ID as small as 6" can be achieved. Applications include heat shields, furnace roofs and linings.

Ring Calculator - Our online calculator can help you determine the quantity of Zircor 3" High arch and straight tongue and groove bricks required to construct 6" to 72" diameter rings.

* Controlled heating and cool-down are important for long life

REFRACTORY BRICK - STANDARD

Standard refractory bricks (19R) are used primarily for custom high-temperature furnace linings, supports and heat shields. Zircor's standard bricks withstand operating temperatures greater than 2000°F (1093°C) with capacity to spall, quartz melting and synthetic crystal growing as a typical applications.

Insulating Firebricks

BNZ provides the best type of Insulating Fire Brick (IFB) for most applications from 2,000°F (1,093°C) to 3,100°F (1,705°C). Each type is formulated to meet specific demands and requires no refractory and other refractory materials to create the refractory.

BNZ produces high purity refractory bricks and other ceramic refractory products. All products are chemically inert and resistant to acid and alkali environments to provide superior performance and long life.

BNZ produces refractories with a wide range of shapes and sizes for industrial, commercial and residential applications. Refractory products include: bricks, tiles, blocks, shapes, and other refractory products.

Advantages of IFB

High Insulating Value: The light weight and high insulating value of BNZ is most product design, thermal shock, increased efficiency and lower operating costs.

Strong: The high strength of BNZ is a result of the strong refractory structure of the refractory. It is a result of the strong refractory structure of the refractory.

Low Heat Storage: The low heat storage of BNZ is a result of the low heat storage of the refractory. It is a result of the low heat storage of the refractory.

High Purity: BNZ IFB are low in impurities such as iron, which has a direct effect on refractory performance in many applications. They are used in many applications with controlled impurities.

Accurate Dimensions: Because BNZ Insulating Fire Brick is made from pure refractory materials, it can be used in many applications with controlled impurities.

EXAMINING ATTORNEY'S APPEAL BRIEF

INTRODUCTION

In this case the Applicant appeals the Trademark Examining Attorney's Final Refusal of the proposed mark, MAGNESITA, for "Refractory products not made primarily of metal, namely, refractory bricks, refractory mixes for patching, lining or repairing high temperature apparatus and repairing the lining for furnaces, refractory furnace patching and repair mixes." Registration has been finally refused because the proposed mark appears to be generic as applied to the proposed goods. Alternatively, registration has also been refused because the mark is descriptive of the applicant's goods under Section 2(e)(1), 15 U.S.C. §1052(e)(1). Moreover, because of the highly descriptive nature of the proposed mark when used in connection with the goods named in the application, the Section 2(f) claim of acquired distinctiveness under the Trademark Act fails due to the insufficiency of proof to overcome the refusal of registration.

The application also includes the following services in International Class 37, "Providing information via a global computer network on constructing, maintaining, and repairing refractory apparatus using refractory products." The examining attorney has stated on the record that the proposed mark is acceptable on the Supplemental Register for the services in International Class 37.

The examining attorney respectfully requests that the Board affirm the refusal to register the proposed mark.

STATEMENT OF THE CASE

On November 16, 2009, the applicant filed an application for the mark, MAGNESITA, for the following goods and services, "Refractory products, namely, refractory bricks, refractory mixes for patching, lining or repairing high temperature apparatus and repairing the lining for furnaces, refractory furnace patching and repair mixes,” and “Computerized online commercial stores featuring refractory products by means of the Internet” and “Providing information via a global computer network on the use of refractory products to construct, maintain and repair refractory apparatus.” On February 22, 2010, the examining attorney issued an office action requiring that the applicant pay for two of the three classes listed in the application, amend the recitation of services in International Class 35 and provide a translation of the proposed mark.

In response to the original office action, on March 18, 2010, the applicant paid the fee for two classes of services, amended the recitation of services in International Class 35 and provided a translation of the mark. On March 30, 2010 the examining attorney issued an examiner’s amendment to put the translation statement in the proper format. Also on March 30, 2010, the examining attorney issued a refusal under Section 2(e)(1) of the Trademark Act because the proposed mark was descriptive of the goods and services based on the translation of the proposed mark.

On September 27, 2010, the applicant responded to the refusal to register the proposed mark under Section 2(e)(1) of the Trademark Act. On November 5, 2010, the examining attorney continued the refusal under Section 2(e)(1) and continued the requirement that the applicant properly amend the recitation of services in International Class 35.

On April 29, 2011, the applicant responded to the continuing refusal to register. The response resolved the recitation of services issue but did not resolve the refusal to register under Section 2(e)(1).

On May 27, 2010, the examining attorney issued a Final Refusal under Section 2(e)(1).

On June 13, 2011, the applicant filed a response to the Final Refusal as well as an Amendment to Allege Use. In the response, the applicant deleted the services in International Class 35 and requested reconsideration of the refusal stating that the filing of the Amendment to Allege Use for the goods and services in International Classes 19 and 37 raised a new issue.

On June 23, 2011, the examining attorney issued a new non-final office action because the Amendment to Allege Use raised a new issue in the application. The specimens of use for the services in International Class 37 were unacceptable. The refusal under Section 2(e)(1) was maintained and continued. On December 15, 2011, the applicant responded to the refusal of the specimens by demonstrating how the specimens actually advertised the services and submitted arguments to overcome the refusal under Section 2(e)(1).

On January 9, 2012, the examining attorney, once again issued a Final Refusal under Section 2(e)(1) and a Final Refusal of the specimens of use in International Class 37. On January 12, 2012, the applicant responded to the Final Refusal of the specimens by stating that the same specimens had been accepted for International Class 37 in another registration and argued against the refusal under Section 2(e)(1).

On February 1, 2012, the examining attorney withdrew the Final Refusal because she had overlooked an issue with the indefinite recitation of services in International Class 37 that should have been addressed earlier. She continued the refusal under Section 2(e)(1) and the requirement for new specimens. On July 26, 2012, the applicant responded to the office action by amending the recitation of services in International Class 37.

On August 28, 2012, the examining attorney once again issued a Final Refusal under Section 2(e)(1). The recitation of services had been made of record. On February 22, 2013, the applicant responded to the Final Refusal by submitting a claim of acquired distinctiveness under Section 2(f).

On March 28, 2013, the examining attorney once again withdrew the Final Refusal because the applicant's Section 2(f) claim raised a new issue. The refusal under Section 2(e)(1) was maintained and continued and the examining attorney addressed the Section 2(f) claim and addressed another identification of goods issue that was previously overlooked.

On September 20, 2013, the applicant responded by amending the identification of goods in International Class 19 and provided arguments supporting the Section 2(f) claim of acquired distinctiveness. The applicant also submitted a voluntary amendment on September 30, 2013, supporting the Section 2(f) claim of acquired distinctiveness.

On October 4, 2014 the examining attorney issued a Final Refusal of the Section 2(f) claim and maintained the Final Refusal under Section 2(e)(1). On March 14, 2014 the applicant submitted a request for reconsideration of the Final Refusal. On March 27, 2014, the examining attorney denied the applicant's request for reconsideration.

On March 29, 2014, the applicant amended the application to the Supplemental Register. On May 27, 2014, the examining attorney withdrew the Final Refusal because the applicant's response raised a new issue. The examining attorney refused registration on the Supplemental Register in International Class 19 because the proposed mark was generic for the goods. Amendment to the Supplemental Register for the mark for the services in International Class 37 was acceptable.

On June 4, 2014, the applicant responded to the refusal on the Supplemental Register for the goods in International Class 19. On July 18, 2014, the examining attorney issued a Final Refusal on the Supplemental Register for the mark for the goods listed in International Class 19 because the mark was generic. On December 17, 2014, the applicant responded with a request for reconsideration after Final Refusal. On February 26, 2015, the examining attorney denied the request for reconsideration.

ISSUES ON APPEAL

Whether the proposed mark has been properly refused because MAGNESITA is generic for the goods in International Class 19 in the application under Trademark Act Section 2(e)(1), 15 U.S.C. §1052(e)(1).

ARGUMENTS

Proposed Mark is Generic for the Goods

Generic terms require refusal because they are common names that the relevant purchasing public understands primarily as describing the genus of the applicant's goods or services. In re Dial-A-Mattress

EXAMINING ATTORNEY'S APPEAL BRIEF

INTRODUCTION

As a preliminary matter the instant appeal brief superseded the incomplete appeal that was erroneously sent on May 14, 2015. The examining attorney requests that the Board disregard the previously submitted incomplete brief. Applicant's Counsel has been advised of the error. The examining attorney apologizes for any confusion this may have caused.

In this case the Applicant appeals the Trademark Examining Attorney's Final Refusal of the proposed mark, MAGNESITA, for "Refractory products not made primarily of metal, namely, refractory bricks, refractory mixes for patching, lining or repairing high temperature apparatus and repairing the lining for furnaces, refractory furnace patching and repair mixes" in International Class 19. Registration has been finally refused because the proposed mark appears to be generic as applied to the proposed refractory products.

The application also includes the following services in International Class 37, "Providing information via a global computer network on constructing, maintaining, and repairing refractory apparatus using refractory products." The examining attorney has stated on the record that the proposed mark is acceptable on the Supplemental Register for the services in International Class 37.

The examining attorney respectfully requests that the Board affirm the refusal to register the proposed mark.

STATEMENT OF THE CASE

On November 16, 2009, the applicant filed an application for the mark, MAGNESITA, for the following goods and services, "Refractory products, namely, refractory bricks, refractory mixes for patching, lining or repairing high temperature apparatus and repairing the lining for furnaces, refractory furnace patching and repair mixes," and "Computerized online commercial stores featuring refractory products by means of the Internet" and "Providing information via a global computer network on the use of refractory products to construct, maintain and repair refractory apparatus.” On February 22, 2010, the examining attorney issued an office action requiring that the applicant pay for two of the three classes listed in the application, amend the recitation of services in International Class 35 and provide a translation of the proposed mark.

In response to the original office action, on March 18, 2010, the applicant paid the fee for two classes of services, amended the recitation of services in International Class 35 and provided a translation of the mark. On March 30, 2010 the examining attorney issued an examiner’s amendment to put the translation statement in the proper format. Also on March 30, 2010, the examining attorney issued a refusal under Section 2(e)(1) of the Trademark Act because the proposed mark was descriptive of the goods and services based on the translation of the proposed mark.

On September 27, 2010, the applicant responded to the refusal to register the proposed mark under Section 2(e)(1) of the Trademark Act. On November 5, 2010, the examining attorney continued the refusal under Section 2(e)(1) and continued the requirement that the applicant properly amend the recitation of services in International Class 35.

On April 29, 2011, the applicant responded to the continuing refusal to register. The response resolved the recitation of services issue but did not resolve the refusal to register under Section 2(e)(1). On May 27, 2010, the examining attorney issued a Final Refusal under Section 2(e)(1).

On June 13, 2011, the applicant filed a response to the Final Refusal as well as an Amendment to Allege Use. In the response, the applicant deleted the services in International Class 35 and requested reconsideration of the refusal stating that the filing of the Amendment to Allege Use for the goods and services in International Classes 19 and 37 raised a new issue.

On June 23, 2011, the examining attorney issued a new non-final office action because the Amendment to Allege Use raised a new issue in the application. The specimens of use for the services in International Class 37 were unacceptable. The refusal under Section 2(e)(1) was maintained and continued. On December 15, 2011, the applicant responded to the refusal of the specimens by demonstrating how the specimens actually advertised the services and submitted arguments to overcome the refusal under Section 2(e)(1).

On January 9, 2012, the examining attorney, once again issued a Final Refusal under Section 2(e)(1) and a Final Refusal of the specimens of use in International Class 37. On January 12, 2012, the applicant responded to the Final Refusal of the specimens by stating that the same specimens had been accepted for International Class 37 in another registration and argued against the refusal under Section 2(e)(1).

On February 1, 2012, the examining attorney withdrew the Final Refusal because she had overlooked an issue with the indefinite recitation of services in International Class 37 that should have been addressed earlier. She continued the refusal under Section 2(e)(1) and the requirement for new specimens. On July 26, 2012, the applicant responded to the office action by amending the recitation of services in International Class 37.

On August 28, 2012, the examining attorney once again issued a Final Refusal under Section 2(e)(1). The recitation of services had been made of record. On February 22, 2013, the applicant responded to the Final Refusal by submitting a claim of acquired distinctiveness under Section 2(f).

On March 28, 2013, the examining attorney once again withdrew the Final Refusal because the applicant's Section 2(f) claim raised a new issue. The refusal under Section 2(e)(1) was maintained and continued and the examining attorney addressed the Section 2(f) claim and addressed another identification of goods issue that was previously overlooked.

On September 20, 2013, the applicant responded by amending the identification of goods in International Class 19 and provided arguments supporting the Section 2(f) claim of acquired distinctiveness. The applicant also submitted a voluntary amendment on September 30, 2013, supporting the Section 2(f) claim of acquired distinctiveness.

On October 4, 2014 the examining attorney issued a Final Refusal of the Section 2(f) claim and maintained the Final Refusal under Section 2(e)(1). On March 14, 2014 the applicant submitted a request for reconsideration of the Final Refusal. On March 27, 2014, the examining attorney denied the applicant's request for reconsideration.

On March 29, 2014, the applicant amended the application to the Supplemental Register. On May 27, 2014, the examining attorney withdrew the Final Refusal because the applicant's response raised a new issue. The examining attorney refused registration on the Supplemental Register in International Class 19 because the proposed mark was generic for the goods. Amendment to the Supplemental Register for the mark for the services in International Class 37 was acceptable.

On June 4, 2014, the applicant responded to the refusal on the Supplemental Register for the goods in International Class 19. On July 18, 2014, the examining attorney issued a Final Refusal on the Supplemental Register for the mark for the goods listed in International Class 19 because the mark was generic. On December 17, 2014, the applicant responded with a request for reconsideration after Final Refusal. On February 26, 2015, the examining attorney denied the request for reconsideration.

ISSUES ON APPEAL

Whether the proposed mark has been properly refused because MAGNESITA is generic for the goods in International Class 19 in the application under Trademark Act Section 2(e)(1), 15 U.S.C. §1052(e)(1).

ARGUMENTS

Proposed Mark is Generic for the Refractory Products

Generic terms require refusal because they are common names that the relevant purchasing public understands primarily as describing the genus of the applicant's goods or services. In re Dial-A-Mattress Operating Corp., 240 F.3d 1341, 1344, 57 USPQ 2d 1807, 1810 (Fed. Cir. 2001); H. Marvin Ginn Corp v. Int'l Ass'n of Fire Chiefs, Inc., 782 F.2d 987, 989-90, 228 USPQ 528, 530 (Fed. Cir. 1986). See TMEP §1209.01(c). Generic terms, by definition incapable of indicating source, are the antithesis of trademarks, and can never attain trademark status. In re Merrill Lynch, Pierce, Fenner, & Smith, Inc., 828 F.2d 1567, 1569, 4 USPQ2d 1141, 1142 (Fed.Cir. 1987); see TMEP §1209.01(c). Refusal is required because registering generic terms "would grant the owner of [a] mark a monopoly, since a competitor could not describe the goods as they are. In re Merrill Lynch, Pierce, Fenner, & Smith, Inc., 828 F.2d at 1569, 4 USPQ2d at 1142.

Determining whether a mark is generic requires a two-step inquiry:

- (1) What is the genus of goods and/or services at issue?
- (2) Does the relevant public understand the designation primarily to refer to that genus of goods and/or services?

In re 1800Mattress.com IP, LLC, 586 F.3d 1359, 1363, 92 USPQ2d 1682, 1684 (Fed. Cir. 2009) (quoting H. Marvin Ginn Corp. v. Int’l Ass’n of Fire Chiefs, Inc., 782 F.2d 987, 989-90, 228 USPQ 528, 530 (Fed. Cir. 1986)); TMEP §1209.01(c)(i).

Regarding the first part of the inquiry, the genus of the goods and/or services is often defined by an applicant’s identification of goods and/or services. See In re Country Music Ass’n, 100 USPQ2d 1824, 1827-28 (TTAB 2011) (citing Magic Wand Inc. v. RDB Inc., 940 F.2d 638, 640, 19 USPQ2d 1551, 1552 (Fed. Cir. 1991)).

In this case, the identification, and thus the genus, is “Refractory products not made primarily of metal, namely, refractory bricks, refractory mixes for patching, lining or repairing high temperature apparatus and repairing the lining for furnaces, refractory furnace patching and repair mixes”.

Regarding the second part of the inquiry, the relevant public is the purchasing or consuming public for the identified goods and/or services. Frito-Lay N. Am., Inc. v. Princeton Vanguard, LLC, 109 USPQ2d 1949, 1952 (TTAB 2014) (citing Magic Wand Inc. v. RDB Inc., 940 F.2d at 640, 19 USPQ2d at 1553). In this case, the relevant public is large industrial operations that require large scale refractory apparatus.

Determining whether an applied-for mark is generic turns on if “the relevant public primarily uses or understands the mark to refer to the category or [genus] of goods [and/or services] in question.” In re Nordic Naturals, Inc., 755 F.3d 1340, 1342, 111 USPQ2d 1495, 1497 (Fed. Cir. 2014); see H. Marvin Ginn Corp. v. Int’l Ass’n of Fire Chiefs, Inc., 782 F.2d 987, 989-90, 228 USPQ 528, 530 (Fed. Cir. 1986); TMEP §1209.01(c). In such a determination, the “relevant public” represents the purchasing or consuming public for the identified goods and/or services. Frito-Lay N. Am., Inc. v. Princeton Vanguard,

LLC, 109 USPQ2d 1949, 1952 (TTAB 2014) (citing Magic Wand Inc. v. RDB Inc., 940 F.2d 638, 640, 19 USPQ2d 1551, 1553 (Fed. Cir. 1991)).

The applicant argues that the relevant public are all general consumers because refractory products are sold at stores open to the general public such as Lowe's®, Home Depot®, and Wal Mart®. The examining attorney categorizes the relevant public as large industrial consumers, such as steel mills, that utilize refractory products as a part of their business. The applicant's specimens demonstrate that the applicant provides "refractory solutions," "service solutions," "minerals," "technical support department," and "research and development center." In addition, the applicant submitted another page from its website that maintains that, "Magnesita is the most integrated refractory industry in the world. Over 70% of the raw material used in production is taken from its own mines." (Applicant's response, February 22, 2013, page 2). The applicant also submitted an article discussing the applicant's acquisition of a German refractory product manufacturer. The article's subtitle is "Brazil's leading magnesite producer acquires German dolomite and refractories group, gaining a global customer base and raw material supply." (Applicant's response, March 14, 2014, page 4) The article also discusses the fact that in Brazil, the applicant controls 70% of the steel refractories market and 80% of the cement refractories market and that the applicant is attempting to expand its customer base by acquiring the German company. All of this evidence points to the fact that the applicant caters to large scale industrial operations as its customers and not to the general public.

Key Component of Goods

As discussed above the applicant's goods are "refractory bricks, refractory mixes for patching, lining or repairing high temperature apparatus and repairing the lining for furnaces, refractory furnace patching and repair mixes." The applicant stated in the response to the first office action that the proposed mark MAGNESITA is “magnesia” from Italian and “magnesite” from Spanish and Portuguese.

The name of an ingredient, a key aspect, a central focus or feature, or a main characteristic of goods and/or services may be generic for those goods and/or services. See In re Tires, Tires, Tires, Inc., 94 USPQ2d 1153, 1157 (TTAB 2009) (holding TIRES TIRES TIRES generic for retail tire store services); In re Cent. Sprinkler Co., 49 USPQ2d 1194, 1199 (TTAB 1998) (holding ATTIC generic for automatic sprinklers for fire protection used primarily in attics); TMEP §§1209.01© et seq.; see also In re Northland Aluminum Prods. Inc., 777 F.2d 1556, 1559-60, 227 USPQ 961, 963-64 (Fed. Cir. 1985) (holding BUNDT generic for cake mix); In re A La Vieille Russie, Inc., 60 USPQ2d 1895, 1900 (TTAB 2001) (holding RUSSIANART generic for art dealership services); A.J. Canfield Co. v. Honickman, 808 F.2d 291, 292, 1 USPQ2d 1364, 1365 (3d Cir. 1986) (holding CHOCOLATE FUDGE generic for diet sodas). Thus, a term does not need to be the name of a specific product and/or service to be found generic.

In this case, magnesia or magnesite is a key ingredient in refractory products. In the office action sent on March 30, 2010, the examining attorney attaches excerpts from a variety of websites that discuss the uses of magnesite. For example, the website geology.com lists “Magnesite-Mineral Properties and Uses” which are refractory bricks, cement. (page 2) Also attached to the same March 30, 2010 office action is a website entitled Minerals Zone World Mineral Exchange, which shows that magnesite in various forms are used for basic refractories. (pages 6 and 7). Finally, in the same office action the website from Peter W. Harben, Inc. Industrial Mineral Consultants demonstrates that magnesite and magnesia are used in refractories.

The office action sent on November 5, 2010 contains more evidence that magnesite is a primary component in refractory products. The first attachment to this office action was from the website Dictionary.com, which states in the definition for magnesite that it is used in the manufacture of refractory bricks, a good specifically listed in the applicant's identification of goods. (page 2). In the office action sent on May 27, 2011, the examining attorney attached the abstract of several articles that discuss the uses of magnesite in the refractory industry. (page 4)

The attachments to the office action sent on March 27, 2014 include Hawley's Condensed Chemical Dictionary, 14th ed., 2011, that show in an entry for magnesite that its uses are for refractories. (page 2) In another attachment to the same office action from the Materials Handbook, 14th ed., states that magnesite is used in the manufacture of bricks for basic refractory furnace linings. (page 11)

Finally, the examining attorney returns to the applicant's website attached to the February 22, 2013 response that states "Over 70% of the raw material used in production is taken from its own mines." The examining attorney also points to the article attached to the response of March 14, 2014, that refers to the applicant as the "Leading Brazilian magnesite producer." The examining attorney has demonstrated that magnesite is a key component in refractory bricks and other refractory products. The applicant is a leading magnesite producer. It is reasonable to conclude that magnesite is a primary component in the applicant's refractory products.

Translation of Foreign Wording

Under the doctrine of foreign equivalents, a mark that consists of or comprises a word or words from a modern foreign language will be translated into English to determine genericness. Palm Bay Imps., Inc. v. Veuve Clicquot Ponsardin Maison Fondée en 1772, 396 F.3d 1369, 1377, 73 USPQ2d 1689, 1696 (Fed. Cir. 2005); see In re Sambado & Son Inc., 45 USPQ2d 1312, 1315 (TTAB 1997); TMEP §1209.03(g).

The doctrine is applied when it is likely that an ordinary American purchaser would “stop and translate” the foreign term into its English equivalent. Palm Bay Imps., Inc. v. Veuve Clicquot Ponsardin Maison Fondée en 1772, 396 F.3d at 1377, 73 USPQ2d at 1696 (quoting In re Pan Tex Hotel Corp., 190 USPQ 109, 110 (TTAB 1976)); cf. TMEP §1207.01(b)(vi)(A). The ordinary American purchaser refers to “all American purchasers, including those proficient in a non-English language who would ordinarily be expected to translate words into English.” In re Spirits Int’l, N.V., 563 F.3d 1347, 1352, 90 USPQ2d 1489, 1492 (Fed. Cir. 2009); see In re Thomas, 79 USPQ2d 1021, 1024 (TTAB 2006) (citing J. Thomas McCarthy, McCarthy on Trademarks & Unfair Competition §23:36 (4th ed., rev. 2006), which states “[t]he test is whether, to those American buyers familiar with the [modern] foreign language, the word would denote its English equivalent.”).

Generally, the doctrine is applied when the English translation is a literal and exact translation of the foreign wording. See In re Oriental Daily News, Inc., 230 USPQ 637, 638 (TTAB 1986); In re Zazzara, 156 USPQ 348, 348 (TTAB 1967); TMEP §1209.03(g).

In this instance the applicant responded to the examining attorney’s first office action on March 18, 2010 with the translation of MAGNESITA as magnesite or magnesia. The applicant spent a lot of time and effort to demonstrate in its response of December 17, 2014 that the word MAGNESITA does not appear in any English language dictionaries and cannot be found in any of the websites of manufacturers of refractory products. The examining attorney submits that the fact that the word MAGNESITA is not found on the English language websites or in English language dictionaries is irrelevant.

The applicant states that MAGNESITA translates to magnesite from Spanish and Portuguese. Common, modern languages include Spanish, French, Italian, German, Chinese, Japanese, Russian, Polish, Hungarian, Serbian and Yiddish. See, e.g., Weiss Noodle Co. v. Golden Cracknel & Specialty Co., 290 F.2d 845, 129 USPQ 411 (C.C.P.A. 1961) (Hungarian); In re Tokutake Indus. Co., 87 USPQ2d 1697 (TTAB 2008) (Japanese); In re Joint-Stock Co. "Baik," 80 USPQ2d 1305 (TTAB 2006) (Russian); In re Perez, 21 USPQ2d 1075 (TTAB 1991) (Spanish); In re Oriental Daily News, Ltd., 230 USPQ 637 (TTAB 1986) (Chinese); In re Ithaca Indus., Inc., 230 USPQ 702 (TTAB 1986) (Italian); In re Jos. Schlitz Brewing Co., 223 USPQ 45 (TTAB 1983) (German); In re Westbrae Natural Foods, Inc., 211 USPQ 642 (TTAB 1981) (Japanese); In re Optica Int'l, 196 USPQ 775 (TTAB 1977) (French); In re Bagel Nosh, Inc., 193 USPQ 316 (TTAB 1976) (Yiddish); In re Hag Aktiengesellschaft, 155 USPQ 598 (TTAB 1967) (Serbian); In re New Yorker Cheese Co., 130 USPQ 120 (TTAB 1961) (Polish).

In this instance the examining attorney also suggests that some of the people who work for the applicant's customers or in the industry here in the United States more than likely speak Spanish. In the office action dated, November 5, 2010, the examining attorney attached several articles discussing the rise in Spanish in the United States. Spanish is the second most common language spoken in the United States.

The applicant's mark, MAGNESITA, translates to magnesite or magnesia, which is a primary ingredient in the applicant's "refractory products" in International Class 19. Accordingly, the term is considered generic for the goods.

CONCLUSION

The applicant conceded that the term MAGNESITA is translated as magnesia or magnesite. It is undisputed that magnesite is a primary component of refractory products which are the applicant's goods. As such the proposed mark is generic for the applicant's goods in International Class 19. The examining attorney respectfully requests that the Board affirm the refusal to register on the Supplemental Register under Section 23 of the Trademark Act because the proposed mark is generic for the refractory products in International Class 19.

REQUEST FOR RECONSIDERATION DENIED*ISSUE/MAILING DATE: 7/13/2015

The trademark examining attorney has carefully reviewed applicant's request for reconsideration and is denying the request for the reasons stated below. See 37 C.F.R. §2.63(b)(3); TMEP §§715.03(a)(ii)(B), 715.04(a). The following requirement(s) and/or refusal(s) made final in the Office action dated November 10, 2015 are maintained and continue to be final: descriptiveness refusal under Section 2(e)(1) and the final refusal of the claim of acquired distinctiveness under Section 2(f). See TMEP §§715.03(a)(ii)(B), 715.04(a).

In the present case, applicant's request has not resolved all the outstanding issue(s), nor does it raise a new issue or provide any new or compelling evidence with regard to the outstanding issue(s) in the final Office action. In addition, applicant's analysis and arguments are not persuasive nor do they shed new light on the issues. Accordingly, the request is denied.

If applicant has already filed a timely notice of appeal with the Trademark Trial and Appeal Board, the Board will be notified to resume the appeal. See TMEP §715.04(a).

If no appeal has been filed and time remains in the six-month response period to the final Office action, applicant has the remainder of the response period to (1) comply with and/or overcome any outstanding final requirement(s) and/or refusal(s), and/or (2) file a notice of appeal to the Board. TMEP §715.03(a)(ii)(B); see 37 C.F.R. §2.63(b)(1)-(3). The filing of a request for reconsideration does not stay or extend the time for filing an appeal. 37 C.F.R. §2.63(b)(3); see TMEP §§715.03, 715.03(a)(ii)(B), (c).

Request for Reconsideration Denied-Section 2(f) Claim Fails

The examining attorney issued a FINAL refusal of the mark under Section 2(f) because the proposed mark, MAGNESITA, is generic as used by the applicant. The applicant submitted sales figures for four years of use in the United States along with an article written about the applicant acquiring domestic refractory products company. Applicant has asserted acquired distinctiveness based on the evidence of record; however, such evidence is not sufficient to show acquired distinctiveness because, as demonstrated by the attached and previously attached evidence, applicant's mark is of a highly descriptive, if not generic, nature. See 15 U.S.C. §1052(e)(1), (f); In re MetPath, Inc., 1 USPQ2d 1750, 1751-52 (TTAB 1986); TMEP §1212.04(a). Additional evidence is needed.

When asserting a Trademark Act Section 2(f) claim, the burden of proving that a mark has acquired distinctiveness is on the applicant. Yamaha Int'l Corp. v. Yoshino Gakki Co., 840 F.2d 1572, 1578-79, 6 USPQ2d 1001, 1004 (Fed. Cir. 1988); In re Meyer & Wenthe, Inc., 267 F.2d 945, 948, 122 USPQ 372, 375 (C.C.P.A. 1959); TMEP §1212.01. Thus, applicant must establish that the purchasing public has come to view the proposed mark as an indicator of origin.

The applicant's goods and services are "refractory products not primarily of metal, namely, refractory bricks, refractory mixes for patching, lining or repairing high temperature apparatus and repairing the lining for furnaces, refractory furnace patching and repair mixes; and pre-cast refractory shapes" and "providing information via a global computer network on the use of refractory products to construct, maintain and repair refractory apparatus using refractory products; and providing information via a global computer network on the use of mechanical equipment and computer models to construct, maintain and repair refractory installations."

As has been discussed in prior office actions, the term MAGNESITA translates to magnesite or magnesite. Magnesite and magnesite are components of refractory products. The applicant's goods are refractory products. The generic name of an ingredient of the goods is incapable of identifying and distinguishing their source and is thus unregistrable on either the Principal or Supplemental Register. See In re Hask Toiletries, Inc., 223 USPQ 1254, 1255 (TTAB 1984) (holding HENNA 'N' PLACENTA incapable of registration on the Supplemental Register for hair conditioner); In re Pepcom Indus., Inc., 192 USPQ 400, 402 (TTAB 1976) (holding JIN.SENG incapable for soft drinks); TMEP §1209.01(c).

Moreover, under the doctrine of foreign equivalents, a mark that consists of or comprises a word or words from a modern foreign language will be translated into English to determine genericness. Palm Bay Imps., Inc. v. Veuve Clicquot Ponsardin Maison Fondée en 1772, 396 F.3d 1369, 1377, 73 USPQ2d 1689, 1696 (Fed. Cir. 2005); see In re Sambado & Son Inc., 45 USPQ2d 1312, 1315 (TTAB 1997); TMEP §1209.03(g).

The doctrine is applied when it is likely that an ordinary American purchaser would "stop and translate" the foreign term into its English equivalent. Palm Bay Imps., Inc. v. Veuve Clicquot Ponsardin Maison Fondée en 1772, 396 F.3d at 1377, 73 USPQ2d at 1696 (quoting In re Pan Tex Hotel Corp., 190 USPQ 109, 110 (TTAB 1976)); cf. TMEP §1207.01(b)(vi)(A). The ordinary American purchaser refers to "all American purchasers, including those proficient in a non-English language who would ordinarily be expected to translate words into English."

In re Spirits Int'l, N.V., 563 F.3d 1347, 1352, 90 USPQ2d 1489, 1492 (Fed. Cir. 2009); see In re Thomas, 79 USPQ2d 1021, 1024 (TTAB 2006) (citing J. Thomas McCarthy, McCarthy on Trademarks & Unfair Competition §23:36 (4th ed., rev. 2006), which states “[t]he test is whether, to those American buyers familiar with the [modern] foreign language, the word would denote its English equivalent.”).

Generally, the doctrine is applied when the English translation is a literal and exact translation of the foreign wording. See In re Oriental Daily News, Inc., 230 USPQ 637, 638 (TTAB 1986); In re Zazzara, 156 USPQ 348, 348 (TTAB 1967); TMEP §1209.03(g).

The applicant’s attorney conducted a search of over 25 websites for refractory goods using MAGNESITA as the search term which resulted in no hits on any of the websites. However, the examining attorney conducted a search of magnesite or magnesia which is the translation of MAGNESITA.

First, the examining attorney directs the applicant’s attention to the first attachment to this office action ISPAT GURU. Magnesia, Magnesite and Magnesium Oxide are used interchangeably.

The word magnesite literally refers only to the natural mineral, but common usage applies this name to three other types of materials, dead burned magnesia (DBM), electro fused magnesia and calcined magnesia also called caustic calcined magnesia. Often magnesia word is replaced by magnesite in these products. These products of magnesite often differ mainly in density and crystal development that results from different levels of heat application.

The examining attorney conducted a search of the websites the applicant mentions in its response. For example, the Zicoa.com website may not have “magnesita” listed as an input in its refractory products. However, the website does state that magnesia is a component in its Zicoa backup products. On the website Firebrickengineers.com, “magnesita” is not mentioned but magnesia is mentioned as a component of its Ladlemax products. The Mineraltec.com website does not list “magnesita” as a component of any of the goods but MgO the chemical symbol for magnesium oxide is listed as a component of the applicant’s goods.

The examining attorney looked at all the websites and many did not actually produce refractory products. For example, the website for the Edward Orton Jr. Ceramic Foundation states that it provides products for “thermal process verification, thermo-analytical instruments and materials testing services.” The applicant is related to the refractory products industry but does not actually produce refractory bricks or other refractory products.

Elgin Butler produces ceramic glazed masonry products such as ceramic tiles. The goods are not for lining the inside of kilns and other high temperature operations but are for construction applications.

Miami Stone Installers are a construction company that installs granite countertops, builds brick and stone walls and builds fireplaces. This company does not produce refractory products.

Finally, the applicant included three large retailers that sell one or two refractory items, Lowe’s, Home Depot and Wal-Mart. None of these companies are in the business of producing refractory products.

For the above reasons, the applicant’s request for reconsideration is denied and the FINAL refusal under Section 2(e)(1) and the FINAL refusal of Section 2(f) is maintained and continued.

Magnesia

Magnesia is magnesium oxide (MgO) is a white hygroscopic solid mineral that occurs naturally as periclase. It forms magnesium hydroxide in the presence of water ( $MgO + H_2O = Mg(OH)_2$ ). And this reaction can be reversed by heating magnesium hydroxide to separate moisture.

Magnesium (Mg) is the eighth most abundant element and constitutes about 2 percent of the crust of the earth. It is the third most plentiful element dissolved in seawater, with a concentration averaging 0.13 %. Although magnesium is found in over 60 minerals, only dolomite, magnesite, brucite, carnallite, and olivine are of commercial importance. Magnesium and magnesium compounds are produced from aspartic, well and lake brines and bitterns, br-salt, as from the above mentioned minerals.

Magnesite (MgCO<sub>3</sub>), the naturally occurring carbonate of magnesium (Mg) is one of the key natural sources for the production of magnesia (MgO) and subsequently fused magnesite. It is the world's largest source of magnesia. It contains a theoretical maximum magnesia content of 41.5 %. It occurs in two distinct physical forms namely (i) macro-crystalline and (ii) crypto-crystalline. Crypto-crystalline magnesite is generally of a higher purity than macro-crystalline ore, but tends to occur in smaller deposits than the macro-crystalline form.

The word magnesite literally refers only to the mineral mineral, but common usage applies this name to these other forms of materials. (read

The word magnesia usually refers only to the natural mineral, but common usage applies this name to three other types of materials, dead burned magnesia (DBM), electro fused magnesia and calcined magnesia also called caustic calcined magnesia. Often magnesia word is replaced by magnesia in these products. These products of magnesia often differ mainly in density and crystal development that results from different levels of heat application. The three products of magnesia are shown in Fig.1

Fig 1 Products of magnesia

Magnesia is an alkaline earth metal oxide. Magnesium oxide is normally produced by the calcinations of naturally occurring minerals mainly magnesite. Other important sources of magnesium oxide are seawater, underground deposits of brine and deep sea beds from which magnesium hydroxide is processed. The general properties of magnesia is given in Tab. 1

Magnesia is a refractory material which is physically and chemically stable at high temperatures. Refractory industry is the largest consumer of magnesia worldwide.

The terms dead burned magnesia (DBM), electro fused magnesia (EFM), or refractory magnesia are used predominantly in the refractory industry where they are mainly used to make shaped and unshaped products to high temperature processes such as furnaces and kilns in the steel, cement, non-ferrous, glass and chemical industries. The terms refer to the granular product produced by firing of magnesite, magnesium hydroxide, or another material reducible to magnesia at temperatures which normally exceed 1500 deg C, the firing process, is to be of sufficiently long duration to produce a dense, reasonably weather stable granule for use in manufacturing refractory materials.

Dead burned magnesia (often called dead burnt) is used almost exclusively for refractory applications in the form of basic bricks and granular refractories. Dead burned magnesia has the highest melting point of all common refractory oxides, and is the most suitable heat resistant material for high temperature processes in the steel industry. Basic magnesia bricks are used in furnaces, ladles and secondary refining vessels. Electro fused magnesia is superior to dead burned magnesia in strength, abrasion resistance and chemical stability.

The terms high grade and high purity generally refer to a refractory magnesia containing more than 96 % MgO, a density greater than 3.30 g/cc, preferably 3.40 g/cc, and a proper relationship of auxiliary oxides.

Magnesia is used in the steel industry as a refractory brick impregnated with tar, pitch, graphite etc to give optimum properties for corrosion resistance in environments of basic slags. Calcined magnesia is used in steel making to modify the properties of steel making slags during refractories is unimpressive in itself, though, but it may be improved by using refractory aggregates in good coating along with steel making as well as to change slag characteristics for slag splashing in BOF vessels. The main application of magnesia is in steel refractories with more than 70 % of all type of magnesia refractories used in steel production and continuous casting operations.

High grade DBM and EFM are used mainly in bricks/shapes to produce the following refractories.

- Magnesia carbon bricks
- Magnesia bricks
- Magnesia chrome bricks
- Magnesia spinel bricks
- Magnesia dolomite bricks
- Magnesia carbon alumina bricks

DBM is mostly used in the manufacture of basic refractory refractories such as gunning repair products, tundish working linings and precast shapes (furnace) dimensions. Applications for sintered magnesia include isotactic pressed shapes and flow control systems (sliding gate plates etc).

High grade magnesia for refractory applications is classified according to purity (MgO content), bulk specific gravity (BSG), periclase crystal size (PCS) and  $\text{CaO}/\text{SiO}_2$  ratio. When the grain size of the magnesia crystal is large then the stability is very good. Typically, high grade DBM for the steel industry requires MgO content of 97 % minimum, BSG of 3.40 minimum, PCS of 100 microns minimum and  $\text{CaO}/\text{SiO}_2$  ratio of 2.0 minimum.

The addition of fused magnesia gains can greatly enhance the performance and durability of basic refractories such as mag carbon bricks. This is a function of a higher bulk specific gravity and large periclase crystal size, plus realignment of accessory silicates. Refractory grade fused magnesia has varying specifications and is normally characterized by the following.

- Generally high magnesia content (minimum 97 % MgO and up to exceeding 99 % MgO)
- Low silica which means high lime to silica ratio of 4 minimum
- Densities of 3.50 g/cc or more
- Large periclase crystal sizes ( 1000 microns minimum)

Due to its relatively high chemical stability, strength and resistance to abrasion as well as excellent corrosion resistance, refractory grade fused magnesia is used in high wear areas in steel making. Lower grade EFM is also used in refractory bricks and shapes. EFM also has high thermal conductivity.

Calcined magnesia is normally graded according to purity, sizing and reactivity. Most of the calcined magnesia produced has MgO content ranging from 95 % to 99 %, is low in impurities (SiO<sub>2</sub> value of less than 10 % and has a high reactivity which means that it has got high absorbing capacity for water vapour and CO<sub>2</sub>.

Historically the main global producers of high grade DBM have been based on synthetic technology combining magnesium rich brine water or lime into magnesia. The only natural high grade DBM producers are Turkey and Australia which are based on crystalline magnesite deposits.

Production process for calcined magnesite, DBM, and EFM

MgO is produced by the calcination of  $\text{MgCO}_3$  or  $\text{Mg}(\text{OH})_2$  or by the treatment of magnesium chloride with lime followed by heat. Calcining at different temperatures produces magnesium oxide of different reactivity. High temperatures (1500 deg C to 2000 deg C) produces dead-burned magnesia, an unreactive form used as a refractory. Calcining temperatures (1000 deg C to 1500 deg C) produces hard-burned magnesia which has limited reactivity until lower temperature. (700 deg C to 1000 deg C) calcining produces light-burned magnesia, a reactive form, which is called calcined magnesia.

Magnesite is converted into magnesia by the application of heat which drives off carbon dioxide (CO<sub>2</sub>), thereby converting the carbonate to the oxide of magnesium (MgO).

Magnesite, from both natural sources (primarily magnesite) and synthetic sources (brine water, natural brines or deep sea salt beds), is converted into calcined magnesia by calcining at between 700 deg C and 1000 deg C, driving off most of the contained CO<sub>2</sub>. Calcined magnesia is both an end product and an intermediary step in the chain of magnesia products.

Further calcining of magnesite at higher temperatures between 1500 deg to 2000 deg C results in the largely inert product, dead-burned magnesia. Heating to this level drives off all but a small fraction of the remaining CO<sub>2</sub> to produce a hard crystalline non reactive form of magnesia which is known as periclase. Dead-burned magnesia exhibits exceptional dimensional stability and strength at high temperatures.

in fused magnesia production; the main constraints on capacity are the size and number of electric arc furnaces, and the cost of energy. The manufacture of fused magnesia is very power intensive with electricity consumption varying between 3500-4500 kWh/ton.

Engineered for a Wide Range of Extreme Environments

Refractory backup (also known as thermal insulation and grog) and custom granular Zirconium Oxide materials are available in unstabilized (pure) form or stabilized (combined) with yttrium oxide, magnesium oxide or calcium oxide for structural stability.

While pure zirconia has limited refractory applications, the stabilized granular forms are engineered to withstand breakdown due to extreme thermal shock and thermal cycling.

Stabilization Types and Application Guidelines

- Magnesia — Molten metal environments and environments subject to extreme wear
- Yttria — Thermal barriers and in ionic conductive applications
- Calcium — Continuous high temperature, or cycling applications with no molten metal contact

Zircoa's refractory backup and granular materials are comprised of porous, irregularly shaped particles. The materials are available in a variety of banded or down mesh sizes. Custom milled materials as small as 0.5 microns are also available.

Zircoa's granular materials possess excellent insulating properties. They have approximately five times the insulating value of alumina or magnesia. As an example: when used as a crucible backup (also known as grog) Zircoa granular materials will extend crucible life and result in cleaner melts.

REFRACTORY BACKUP (THERMAL INSULATION)

Extend the life of your furnace, and maintain tighter control over your furnace temperatures with Zircoa's pre-sintered grog refractory backup.

Tundish Refractories

Tundish Spray Coating - Ferrocon SGS Series

FERROCON SGS series, sprayable coating material is a proven performer for tundish wear lining. Quick and clean decouling property is the key success function of Ferrocon SGS series.

The technology for pneumatic placement of insulating refractories has led to the development of the Ferrocon SGS Series Spray Products. This concept has gained worldwide acceptance in many billet, bloom and slab casting facilities as a result of its simple operation.

It has led to lower labor costs because of the decrease in installation time. The system occupies less space, thus is applicable for even the most congested tundish assembly areas. Ferrocon SGS can be applied with zero rebound to any tundish- regardless of geometry.

It can be sprayed on any refractory surface up to 80°C, which enables the steelmaker to utilize residual heat in the tundish helping

More than 10 million tons of steel per year is continuously being cast through Ferrocon tundish boards.

FERROCON-MgO is engineered to withstand ultralong sequences of high performance meltshops.

With increasingly sophisticated end use for tundish liner products, Ferrocon MgO performances such as 85 heats of 82 tons ladle lasting 76 hours, 73 heats of 100 tons ladle lasting 63 hours and many other ultralong sequence lengths are achieved with full confidence. Ferrocon MgO is tailor-made with variable thicknesses and densities as well as unique slag line support system according to tundish design and application.

Selected raw material, thorough research, rigid process control result in the consistent quality of Ferrocon MgO tundish boards. With Ferrocon MgO, back-up lining is prolonged and tundish deskulling is an easy and simple procedure.

FERROCON-Silica is engineered in different densities from standard type to the premium MULTIPOUR to completely match the liner to user application.

Carbon and low alloy steel with less than 1.2 % manganese are routinely cast with Ferrocon Silica boards.

Ferrocon Silica offers the most economic solution for low sequence casting, which does not exceed 10 hours.

In addition to the full spectrum of liner boards, FCM series sealing mortar and ramming mixes produced both in silica and magnesite base to match the liner compositions are available to complete the full installation of each tundish lining.

Isostatic Refractories - Ferroflow Series

Asmas has recently developed its own Isostatic Refractory Technology for Tundish flow protection and control applications. Asmas is still the sole supplier of isostatic refractory products in Turkey and uses the FERROFLOW brand name for its product series.

Isostatic pressing of carbon bonded refractory makes is a technology that allows complex designs in refractories for some special applications. These special applications are mostly classified in two main groups, such as protection of the stream, and controlling the liquid steel flow from tundish to mold. The FERROFLOW products are widely used for quality steels by slab and alloy steelmakers.

Ladle Shroud (LS), is used for the protection of the steel stream from ladle to tundish. The connection of LS is done to the collector nozzle of the Ladle Slide Gate with the help of a manipulator. The LS has a submerged entry to the steel bath in the Tundish. Primarily, LS application will prevent the re-oxidation of the steel, reduce the Nitrogen pickup, improve steel cleanliness and create a safer environment by eliminating splashing. There are also some secondary benefits, such as less consumption of the tundish covering compound, less tundish heat loss and less radiation from Tundish to Ladle.

Stopper Rod (SR), is used to control the steel flow from the Tundish to the Mold. The SR is fixed into the Tundish on the casting strand with the help of a steel rod, fixed into the SR, and connected to manipulator arm, which can control the SR with upward-downward movements. The SR control mechanisms can be manual-controlled or automatic-driven. The SR sits on the seat area of either a Tundish Nozzle (TN) or a Submerged Nozzle (SN), which are both casting channels out from the tundish. Under the TN, a type Tundish Shroud (TS) has to be used. The TN to TS connection can be done with various possible methods, such as either direct refractory conical connection or with the help of an exchange mechanism. Depending on the connection method, TS may have different sizes and connections from the TN to the mold. Several models are designed according to customer needs. The SN is a long, one-piece solution to allow the submerged flow directly into the mold from the Tundish.

Please contact Asmas engineers or specialists for investigating suitable design and quality for your applications.

II. STATEMENT OF THE ISSUE

Whether the final Office Action dated November 10, 2014, is correct in asserting that the present mark MAGNESITA (word without design or stylization) is generic and, alternatively, the mark is highly descriptive and has not acquired distinctiveness under Section 2(f) with respect to the goods and services:

Class 19: refractory products not primarily of metal, namely, refractory bricks, refractory mixes for patching, lining or repairing high temperature apparatus and repairing the lining for furnaces, refractory furnace patching and repair mixes; and pre-cast refractory shapes;
and

U.S. Application No. 85834316

Class 37: providing information via a global computer network on the use of refractory products to construct, maintain and repair refractory apparatus using refractory products; and providing information via a global computer network on the use of mechanical equipment and computer models to construct, maintain and repair refractory installations.

III. RECITATION OF THE FACTS

Applicant filed the pending application under Section 1(a) of the Trademark Act on January 31, 2013. In the first Office Action dated February 27, 2013, the Examining Attorney refused the registration of "MAGNESITA" under Section 2(e)(1) allegedly on the basis that the applied-for mark merely describes the primary component of the Applicant's goods. The Examining Attorney alleged that since the word magnesita translates to magnesite or magnesia and magnesite or magnesia is used in refractory products, the term "MAGNESITA" describes an important component of the Applicant's goods and refused its registration. In its Response dated August 14, 2013, Applicant argued that the mark is suggestive, not merely descriptive.

In a final Office Action dated September 9, 2013, the Examining Attorney alleged that the mark was merely descriptive when used in connection with the goods and services named in the application. In its Request for Reconsideration dated March 6, 2014, Applicant asserted that the mark has acquired distinctiveness under Section 2(f) of the Lanham Act to overcome the allegation that the mark is merely descriptive of the goods and services. Applicant submitted a Declaration that the mark had been in substantially exclusive and continuous use in commerce since at least as early as October 1, 2010, by Applicant.

On March 26, 2014, the Examining Attorney issued a non-final Office Action alleging that the evidence of record was not sufficient to show acquired distinctiveness because Applicant's mark was of a highly descriptive nature. The Examining Attorney further alleged that since the term "MAGNESITA" is Portuguese and is translated as magnesite, where magnesite, magnesia, or magnesium is the primary component of refractory products, the evidence of record was insufficient to show acquired distinctiveness of the mark. The Examining Attorney relied on excerpts from Hawley's Condensed Chemical Dictionary, Concise Encyclopedia of Chemical Technology, Materials Handbook, Dictionary of Materials Science, Concise Encyclopedia of Chemistry, and Scientific Encyclopedia to show that magnesite ( $\text{MgCO}_3$ ) and magnesium oxide ( $\text{MgO}$ ) can be used for refractories.

In its Response dated September 23, 2014, Applicant submitted a Declaration of Gross Sales from 2010 to 2013 to show that the gross sales of refractory products under the trademark MAGNESITA.

On November 10, 2014, the Examining Attorney issued a final Office Action which alleged that the previously submitted evidence was insufficient to support a claim of Section 2(f), since the proposed mark is considered generic with respect to applicant's goods in Class 19 and services in Class 37. The Examining Attorney alleged that the English translation of MAGNESITA is "magnesite" or "magnesia," which the Examining Attorney considered to be one of the primary components in refractory products. The Examining Attorney also asserted that even if the mark were not considered generic for the goods, the mark was certainly highly descriptive of the goods and services.

On May 6, 2015, Applicant filed a Request for Reconsideration, and submitted additional evidence of acquired distinctiveness: a Declaration of Gross Sales in 2014, in excess of US$220,000,000; and a Declaration about Exclusive Use to show that "MAGNESITA" is not used by others. Applicant also amended the date of first use to October, 2008, with supporting documentation.

Applicant filed on May 7, 2015, a Notice of Appeal to the Trademark Trial and Appeal Board, with a request for remand that was granted. The Examining Attorney on July 13, 2015, issued a Request for Reconsideration Denied, which alleged that Applicant had not resolved all the outstanding issues, and not raised a new issue or provided any new or compelling evidence. This appeal was resumed on July 22, 2015.

APPLICANT'S BRIEF
U.S. Application No. 85834316

The Declaration of Gross Sales in 2014, filed May 6, 2015, states that the gross sales of refractory products associated with the trademark MAGNESITA from January 1 to December 31, 2014 were in excess of US $220,000,000 for domestic production.

IV. ARGUMENT

A. THE STANDARD OF REVIEW.

Applicant respectfully submits that the standard of review should be reconsidered in view of the Supreme Court's decision in the case B & B Hardware, Inc. v. Hargis Industries, Inc., ___U.S.___, 135 S.Ct. 1293 (2015) (Ultimately, Board decisions on likelihood of confusion ... should be given preclusive effect on a case-by-case basis)." 135 S.Ct. at 1306. This subjects the present Applicant to the risk that a court may later give a Board decision preclusive effect. See also, Vicor Corporation v. Synqor, Inc., 2015 WL 2172160 (Patent Tr. & App. Bd.) ("agency decision is grounds for issue preclusion in litigation" citing B & B Hardware).

The Supreme Court held that the "Eighth Circuit likewise erred by concluding that Hargis bore the burden of persuasion before the TTAB. B & B, the party opposing registration, bore the burden," 135 S.Ct. at 1309. The Court has instructed that burden of persuasion should be on the party opposing registration, which in the present appeal is the Examining Attorney.

Applicant acknowledges the Federal Circuit precedence arguably to the contrary. In ex parte cases, the question is simply "whether or not, based on the record before the examiner, the examiner's action was correct." In re Bose Corp., 772 F.2d 866, 869, 227 USPQ 1 (Fed. Cir. 1985).

Moreover, it would be arbitrary and capricious, and an abuse of discretion, to continue different standards of review for ex parte trademark appeals versus ex parte patent appeals. Compare, In re Fine, 837 F.2d 1071, 5 USPQ2d 1596 (Fed. Cir. 1988) ("The PTO has the burden under section 103 to establish a prima facie case of obviousness [citation omitted]." 837 F.2d at 1074).

APPLICANT'S BRIEF
U.S. Application No. 85834316

B. THE EXAMINING ATTORNEY HAS NOT ESTABLISHED CLEAR EVIDENCE TO SHOW GENERICNESS OF THE MARK.

The present refusal is based in part on the statutory provision that requires the mark to be “capable of distinguishing the applicant’s goods and services.” 15 U.S.C. § 1091(c) (2005). Generic terms are “incapable of functioning as registrable trademarks denoting source, and are not registrable on the Principal Register under §2(f) or on the Supplemental Register.” (TMEP § 1209.01(c)).

In proving genericness, the Office has the difficult burden of proving the refusal with “clear evidence” of genericness. In re Interfashion U.S.A., Inc., 2006 WL 3147914 * 2 (TTAB 2006) (non-precedential) (citing In re Merrill, Lynch, Pierce, Fenner & Smith, Inc., 828 F.2d 1567, 4 USPQ2d 1141, 1143 (Fed. Cir. 1987)); see also In re Steelbuilding.com, 415 F.3d 1293, 1296, 75 USPQ2d 1420 (Fed. Cir. 2005). “The critical issue in genericness cases is whether members of the relevant public primarily use or understand the term sought to be protected to refer to the genus of goods or services in question.” H. Marvin Ginn Corp. v. International Ass’n of Fire Chiefs, Inc., 782 F.2d 987, 989-90, 228 USPQ 528 (Fed. Cir. 1986)). Determining whether a mark is generic therefore involves a two-step inquiry: First, what is the genus of goods or services at issue? Second, whether the term sought to be registered or retained on the register is understood by the relevant public primarily to refer to that genus of goods or services. H. Marvin Ginn Corp., 782 F.2d 990. Doubt on the issue of genericness is resolved in favor of the applicant. In re Interfashion U.S.A., Inc., 2006 WL 3147914 * 3 (citing In re Waverly Inc., 27 USPQ2d 1620, 1624 (TTAB 1993)). In this case, Applicant submits that the Examiner has failed to establish by clear evidence that the mark “MAGNESITA” is understood by the relevant public to be generic by primarily referring to the class of goods and services at issue, i.e., refractory products and information services.

APPLICANT'S BRIEF
U.S. Application No. 85834316

1. THE CATEGORY OF THE GOODS AND SERVICES AT ISSUE IS REFRACTORY PRODUCTS AND INFORMATION SERVICES.

In determining the first step of genericness, Applicant submits that the category of goods and services at issue is refractory products and information services. Specifically, the goods are “refractory products not primarily of metal, namely, refractory bricks, refractory mixes for patching, lining or repairing high temperature apparatus and repairing the lining for furnaces, refractory furnace patching and repair mixes; and pre-cast refractory shapes,” while the services are “providing information via a global computer network on the use of refractory products to construct, maintain and repair refractory apparatus using refractory products; and providing information via a global computer network on the use of mechanical equipment and computer models to construct, maintain and repair refractory installations.”

2. THE RELEVANT PUBLIC WOULD NOT UNDERSTAND THE WORD
“MAGNESITA” TO PRIMARILY REFER TO REFRACTORY PRODUCTS AND INFORMATION SERVICES.

The Examining Attorney has failed to properly identify the relevant public and provide clear evidence that the relevant public primarily refers to refractory products and information services by the present mark. In determining the second step of the genericness determination, the court must identify the relevant public by identifying who actually or potentially purchases or consumes the goods, and whether members of the relevant public primarily use or understand the term sought to be protected to refer to the genus of goods or services in question. See H. Marvin Ginn Corp., 782 F.2d at 989; Magic Wand, Inc. v. RDB, Inc., 940 F.2d 638, 641, 19 USPQ2d 1552 (Fed. Cir. 1991); see also TMEP § 1209.01(c). In this case, the Examining Attorney has not established that the relevant public would have understood the mark “MAGNESITA” as primarily referring to refractory products or information services.

Although the Examining Attorney alleged in the Final Action of November 10, 2014 and Denial of the Request for Reconsideration of July 13, 2015 that the proposed mark “MAGNESITA” is generic,

APPLICANT'S BRIEF

the Examining Attorney has not provided clear evidence to support this conclusion. The Examining Attorney has not identified the relevant public. Applicant submits that since the relevant public for a genericness determination is the actual or potential purchaser of the goods or services, the relevant public in this case is any actual or potential purchaser of refractory products or information services, which in this case is the general public. See Magic Wand, Inc., 940 F.2d at 641. In so doing, as is clear from the plain reading of the identification of goods in Class 19 and services in Class 37, the refractory products and information services are not limited to a particular group of customers, but to any actual or potential purchaser. In other words, since any doubt on the issue of genericness is resolved in favor of the applicant, the relevant public in this genericness determination is the general public, because the general public actually or potentially purchases the refractory products and information services. See In re Interfashion U.S.A., Inc., 2006 WL 3147914 * 3.

The Examining Attorney erroneously asserts that since magnesia and magnesite may be used in the goods and services, the ingredient may be generic for the goods and services. Applicant submits that the test for genericness is not whether any ingredient may be generic for those goods and services, but rather, whether the relevant public would primarily use or understand the term sought to be protected to refer to the genus of goods and services in question. See H. Marvin Ginn Corp., 782 F.2d at 991.

For example, this Board in In re Tires, Tires, Tires, Inc. held that the term “tires” was generic because the term “tires” identifies a key aspect of applicant’s services, i.e., the goods sold in applicant’s retail store, and the recitation of services specifically uses the term “tires” to name the subject matter of applicant’s retail services. In re Tires, Tires, Tires, Inc., 94 U.S.P.Q.2d 1153, 2009 WL 4075360 * 5 (TTAB 2009). Similarly, the Court of Appeals for the Federal Circuit held that the word “BUNDT” for “ring cake mix” was generic since BUNDT was the common descriptive name of the type of cake being sold. In re Northland Aluminum Products, Inc., 777 F.2d 1556, 1560 (Fed. Cir. 1985).

APPLICANT'S BRIEF
U.S. Application No. 85834316

In contrast, in the present appeal, the Examining Attorney has not provided record evidence to suggest that the term “MAGNESITA” primarily refers to the class of refractory products and information services. Rather, as evidenced by Exhibits A to AJ filed with the Request for Reconsideration of May 6, 2015, the relevant public would have understood that the terms “castable refractories,” “precast refractory shapes,” “mortar,” “castable,” “fire brick,” and “refractory brick” are used as the generic terms for various refractory products and information services (Dec. ¶ 4-39).

The Examining Attorney cited a third party website excerpt about Applicant. “The Company benefits from some of the largest and highest quality reserves of dolomite, magnesite, and talc in the world. Magnesita also has other mineral deposits, including chromite and several clays through Brazil. The Company is able to use 80% (by volume) of its own raw materials in the production of refractories.” See page 3 of the Final Office Action in the TSDR dated November 10, 2014. Further, the types of products Applicant produces include: 1) Bricks and Shapes of: Alumina, Alumina Mag Carbon/Mag, Alumina Carbon, Alumina Silicon Carbide, Bottom Pour, Doloma/Magnesia Doloma- fired and cured, Magnesita Carbon, Magnesita Chrome, Magnesita Spinel, and Pre-cast and –basic and alumina and 2) Bulk Refractories of: Castables – basic and alumina, Coatings, Dry Vibratables, Gunning Mixes, Mortars, Plastics, Ramming Mix, and Taphole Mix (at page 4 of the Final Office Action in the TSDR dated November 10, 2014). This excerpt does not support the Examining Attorney’s allegation that MAGNESITA is generic.

The Examining Attorney has failed to provide clear evidence that the relevant public would have understood the term “MAGNESITA” to be generic and to primarily refer to refractory products and information services.

In fact, the Examining Attorney has not provided any evidence that the relevant public uses the term “MAGNESITA” to refer to any refractory product or information service. See In re Minnetonka, Inc., 3 USPQ2d 1711, 1987 WL 124303 \* 3 (TTAB 1987) (“This body of evidence is persuasive, and the Examining Attorney does not claim otherwise, to show that there exists a fairly substantial number of competitors in the business of selling liquid hand soap; that none of these competitors uses the term ‘soft soap’ descriptively, generically or otherwise in connection with its product.”) At most, the Examining Attorney has established magnesia can be used as a component of the goods sold on various websites, e.g. refractory brick, lining, etc., and has also established that other materials can be used for such refractory products. For example, as seen in the printed web-page for Vitcas provided by the Examining Attorney on July 13, 2015, the refractory mortars are high alumina refractories, e.g., 44-88%  $\text{Al}_2\text{O}_3$  with varying concentrations of iron oxide,  $\text{Fe}_2\text{O}_3$  (at pages 4-6 of the Request for Reconsideration Denied in the TSDR). Similarly, as seen in the printed web-page for Zircoa, the refractory backup primarily includes custom granular Zirconium Oxide in unstabilized (pure) form or stabilized (combined) with yttrium oxide, magnesium oxide, or calcium oxide for structural stability (at page 11 of the Request for Reconsideration Denied in the TSDR). What the Examining Attorney has failed to establish by clear evidence, however, is that the relevant public uses the terms magnesia or magnesite or “MAGNESITA” to primarily refer to the class of refractory products or information services.

In other words, Applicant submits that unlike this Board’s holding in In re Tires, Tires, Tires, Inc. and the Federal Circuit’s holding in In re Northland Aluminum Products, Inc., where the proposed marks were found to be generic since the marks primarily referred to the genus of the class for the applicant’s goods and services, the present mark MAGNESITA does not refer to the genus of “refractory products and information services.” The Examining Attorney has not established by clear evidence that the relevant public would have understood that the term “MAGNESITA” primarily refers to the class of goods and services for refractory products and information services.

The present goods and services are not magnesia or magnesite, where magnesite has the chemical formula  $\text{MgCO}_3$  and is used to produce magnesia having the chemical formula  $\text{MgO}$ . Rather, the present goods are “refractory products not made primarily of metal” and services for “providing information via a global computer network on the use of refractory products.” Magnesite is a compound in Class 1 and not in Class 19 or 37. In other words, while magnesia and magnesite are generic terms to identify different minerals, the Examining Attorney has not provided clear evidence to establish that magnesia and magnesite are generic terms to primarily identify refractory products or information services. See In re Interfashion U.S.A., Inc., 2006 WL 3147914 \*3 (“The two references to “Oat Straw” hair care preparations which appear to be generic in nature do not constitute a clear or substantial showing of generic use.”)

The Examining Attorney has failed to establish by clear evidence that the relevant public uses the term “MAGNESITA” to primarily refer to refractory products or information services and only has established that magnesia and magnesite can be used as one component of refractory brick or lining, which can also include alumina, zirconium, silica, yttrium, calcium, etc. as primary ingredients. Thus, this Board must conclude that “MAGNESITA” is not generic for the Applicant’s refractory products of Class 19 or information services of Class 37.

C. THE MARK “MAGNESITA” HAS ACQUIRED DISTINCTIVENESS

The statute allows the registration of “a mark used by the applicant which has become distinctive of the applicant’s goods in commerce.” 15 U.S.C. §1052(f) (2005). The “Director may accept as prima facie evidence that the mark has become distinctive, as used on or in connection with the applicant’s goods in commerce, proof of substantially exclusive and continuous use thereof as a mark by the applicant in commerce for the five years before the date on which the claim of distinctiveness is made.” 15 U.S.C. § 1052(f).

The amount and character of such evidence depends on the facts of each case, however, necessarily varies, depending upon the degree of descriptiveness involved, and becomes progressively greater as the descriptiveness of the term increases. In re Mine Safety Appliances Co., 66 U.S.P.Q.2d 1694 * 3 (TTAB 2002) (non-precedential) (citing Yamaha Int’l Corp. v. Hoshino Gakki Co., 840 F.2d 1572, 6 USPQ2d 1001, 1008 (Fed. Cir. 1988)); In re Whitetail Inst. Of North America, Inc., 2014 WL 1390517 * 2 (TTAB 2014) (non-precedential). “To show that a mark has acquired distinctiveness, an applicant must demonstrate that the relevant public understands the primary significance of the mark as identifying the source of a product or service rather than the product or service itself.” In re Steelbuilding.com, 415 F.3d 1293, 75 U.S.P.Q.2d 1420, 1422 (Fed. Cir. 2005).

1. THE MARK “MAGNESITA” IS NOT HIGHLY DESCRIPTIVE.

In determining whether a mark is highly descriptive, the Board should initially determine whether the Examining Attorney has submitted evidence to establish that the mark immediately tells prospective customers about the features of applicant’s goods or services, and then whether the record has a sufficient number of references to establish that the mark is highly descriptive. See In re Greek Gourmet, Inc., 2000 WL 1720159 * 2 (TTAB 2000) (non-precedential); see also In re the Kyjen Company, Inc., 2012 WL 1424429 * 6 (TTAB 2012) (non-precedential), In re Whitetail Inst. Of North America, Inc., 2014 WL 1390517 * 3 (TTAB 2014).

The Examining Attorney has not provided the necessary evidence to establish that the mark “MAGNESITA” is highly descriptive of Applicant’s goods and services. Although the Examining Attorney has provided evidence that magnesia or magnesite can be used in refractory products, the Examining Attorney has not provided evidence that the mark “MAGNESITA” is highly descriptive of “refractory products not primarily of metal, namely, refractory bricks, refractory mixes for patching, lining or repairing high temperature apparatus and repairing the lining for furnaces, refractory furnace patching and repair mixes; and pre-cast refractory shapes,” and “providing information via a global computer network on the use of refractory products to construct, maintain and repair refractory apparatus using refractory products; and providing information via a global computer network on the use of mechanical equipment and computer models to construct, maintain and repair refractory installations.”

APPLICANT'S BRIEF
U.S. Application No. 85834316

Specifically, the Examining Attorney has not provided the necessary evidence to establish that the mark "MAGNESITA" immediately tells prospective customers about the features of Applicant's goods or services. Rather, the Examining Attorney only provides evidence that the English translation of "MAGNESITA" is "magnesite" or "magnesia." While the Examining Attorney has not cited a case where the doctrine of foreign equivalents has been applied in the context of an assertion of acquired distinctiveness, Applicant submits that even assuming, but not admitting that "MAGNESITA" would be understood by a significant portion of the relevant potential purchasers to mean "magnesite" or "magnesia," the Examining Attorney has not placed into the record sufficient references to establish that "magnesite" or "magnesia" is highly descriptive of the refractory products in Class 19 or information services in Class 37. The Examining Attorney only points to web page excerpts that show magnesia or magnesite can be a component of refractory products.

Applicant, however, does not observe any evidence that the present mark "MAGNESITA," immediately tells prospective customers about a feature of Applicant's "refractory products not primarily of metal, namely, refractory bricks, refractory mixes for patching, lining or repairing high temperature apparatus and repairing the lining for furnaces, refractory furnace patching and repair mixes; and pre-cast refractory shapes," and "providing information via a global computer network on the use of refractory products to construct, maintain and repair refractory apparatus using refractory products; and providing information via a global computer network on the use of mechanical equipment and computer models to construct, maintain and repair refractory installations."

That is, while the term "magnesite" may be merely descriptive, the record does not establish that the mark MAGNESITA is highly descriptive of refractory products and information services.

Applicant submits, similar to the Board's holding in In re Greek Gourmet Inc. (where the Board held that if the "mark "GREEK GOURMET" was highly descriptive, if not generic, as contended by the Examining Attorney, then it is hard to understand how there were fewer than 70 references to this term during a time span of nearly 30 years”), in the present appeal this Board should find that since the Examining Attorney has not provided any evidence that the mark “MAGNESITA” has been used in connection with describing refractory products or information services, the record dictates the only conclusion, that the mark “MAGNESITA” is not highly descriptive of the recited refractory products or information services.

Applicant submits that the Examining Attorney has only provided evidence that magnesia or magnesite can be used in refractory products. Applicant, however, does not observe any evidence that the mark “MAGNESITA” is used to describe any specific type of refractory product or information service. In fact, as evidenced by the declaration filed May 6, 2015, Applicant has not found any instance where the mark “MAGNESITA” was used to describe the refractory product, but rather, only observed the generic terms “castable refractories,” “precast refractory shapes,” “mortar,” “castable,” “fire brick,” and “refractory brick” as being used to describe the refractory products and information services. In other words, Applicant submits that since the Examining Attorney has not provided any evidence that the terms magnesia, and magnesite, let alone the mark “MAGNESITA” have been used to describe refractory products and information services, the mark “MAGNESITA” cannot be highly descriptive of the recited products or services.

2. THE MARK HAS ACQUIRED DISTINCTIVENESS BECAUSE OF MORE THAN FIVE YEARS OF SUBSTANTIALLY EXCLUSIVE AND CONTINUOUS USE.

The amount and character of evidence to establish acquired distinctiveness depends on the facts of each case, and becomes progressively greater as the descriptiveness of the term increases. In re Mine Safety Appliances Co., 66 U.S.P.Q.2d 1694 * 3 (TTAB 2002) (non-precedential); In re the Kyjen Company, Inc., 2012 WL 1424429 * 6 (TTAB 2012) (non-precedential); In re Whitetail Inst. Of North America, Inc., 2014 WL 1390517 * 2 (TTAB 2014) (non-precedential). Since the mark “MAGNESITA” is not highly descriptive of Applicant’s goods and services, the Director should accept as prima facie evidence that the mark has become distinctive with proof of substantially exclusive and continuous use for more than five years.

APPLICANT'S BRIEF

The Examining Attorney has erred by not fully considering Applicant's claim of acquired distinctiveness based. Applicant submits that the mark "MAGNESITA" is at most merely descriptive and not highly descriptive of Applicant's "refractory products not primarily of metal, namely, refractory bricks, refractory mixes for patching, lining or repairing high temperature apparatus and repairing the lining for furnaces, refractory furnace patching and repair mixes; and pre-cast refractory shapes," and "providing information via a global computer network on the use of refractory products to construct, maintain and repair refractory apparatus using refractory products; and providing information via a global computer network on the use of mechanical equipment and computer models to construct, maintain and repair refractory installations."

The Examiner should have accepted the declarations filed September 23, 2014 and May 6, 2015 as prima facie evidence that the mark has acquired distinctiveness based on the more than five years of exclusive and continuous use of the mark "MAGNESITA." The Declaration of Gross Sales establishes that the mark MAGNESITA has been used in association with the sale of refractory products in excess of US $103,000,000 in 2010, in excess of US $200,000,000 in 2011, in excess of US $200,000,000 in 2012, in excess of US $230,000,000 in 2013, and in excess of $220,000,000 in 2014. Applicant has exclusively used the mark "MAGNESITA" in commerce since 2008. That is, Applicant has sold more than almost 1 billion dollars of refractory products during this period under the mark MAGNESITA, which clearly establishes that the mark MAGNESITA indicates that Applicant is the source of the goods and services.

APPLICANT'S BRIEF
U.S. Application No. 85834316

V. SUMMARY

The application should be approved for registration on the Principal Register because the mark "MAGNESITA" is not generic and has acquired distinctiveness. Applicant respectfully requests that this Board reverse the refusal of registration.

Respectfully submitted,

EXAMINING ATTORNEY'S APPEAL BRIEF

INTRODUCTION

In this case the applicant appeals the Trademark Examining Attorney's Final Refusal under Section 2(e)(1) of the Trademark Act as merely descriptive of the proposed mark, MAGNESITA, for "refractory products not primarily of metal, namely, refractory bricks, refractory mixes for patching, lining or repairing high temperature apparatus and repairing the lining for furnaces, refractory furnace patching and repair mixes; and pre-cast refractory shapes" and for "providing information via a global computer network on the use of refractory products to construct, maintain and repair refractory apparatus using refractory products; and providing information via a global computer network on the use of mechanical equipment and computer models to construct, maintain and repair refractory installations." The applicant also appeals a Final Refusal of the applicant's claim of acquired distinctiveness under Section 2(f) of the Trademark Act.

The examining attorney respectfully requests that the Board affirm the refusal to register the proposed mark.

STATEMENT OF THE CASE

On January 28, 2013, the applicant filed an application for the mark, MAGNESITA for "refractory products not primarily of metal, namely, refractory bricks, refractory mixes for patching, lining or repairing high temperature apparatus and repairing the lining for furnaces, refractory furnace patching and repair mixes; and pre-cast refractory shapes" and for "providing information via a global computer network on the use of refractory products to construct, maintain and repair refractory apparatus using refractory products; and providing information via a global computer network on the use of mechanical equipment and computer models to construct, maintain and repair refractory installations."

On February 27, 2013, the examining attorney issued an office action refusing the proposed mark under Section 2(e)(1) as merely descriptive and required a translation of MAGNESITA. On August 14, 2013, the applicant responded to the refusal to register and amended the application with the translation of MAGNESITA AS “magnesite” or “magnesia.”

On September 9, 2013, the examining attorney issued a Final Refusal under Section 2(e)(1) of the Trademark Act because the mark is merely descriptive as applied to the applicant’s goods and services. On March 6, 2014, the applicant responded to the Final Refusal by claiming that the proposed mark had acquired distinctiveness, based on evidence alone, under Section 2(f) of the Trademark Act. The applicant’s only evidence of acquired distinctiveness was a Canadian Registration. On March 26, 2014, the examining attorney withdrew the Final Refusal to refuse the applicant’s insufficient Section 2(f) claim of acquired distinctiveness.

On September 23, 2014, the applicant responded to the examining attorney’s refusal of the applicant’s Section 2(f) claim of acquired distinctiveness. On November 10, 2014, the examining attorney issued a Final Refusal of the Section 2(f) claim because the mark is generic as applied to the applicant’s goods and related services.

On May 6, 2015, the applicant filed a request for reconsideration of the Final Refusal of the applicant’s Section 2(f) claim of acquired distinctiveness. On July 13, 2015, the examining attorney denied the applicant’s request for reconsideration.

ISSUES ON APPEAL

Whether the proposed mark, MAGNESITA, has been properly refused registration under Section 2(f) as generic in connection with the goods and services in the application under Section 2(e)(1); 15 U.S.C. §1052(e)(1).

ARUGMENTS

Section 2(f) Claim Is An Admission That the Mark Is Descriptive

The examining attorney initially refused registration under Section 2(e)(1) and the applicant responded by amending the application to assert a claim of acquired distinctiveness under Section 2(f). According to TMEP §1212.02(b) a claim of distinctiveness under §2(f), whether made in the application as filed or in a subsequent amendment, may be construed as conceding that the matter to which it pertains is not inherently distinctive and, thus, not registrable on the Principal Register absent proof of acquired distinctiveness. See Cold War Museum, Inc. v. Cold War Air Museum, Inc., 586 F.3d 1352, 92 USPQ2d 1626, 1629 (Fed. Cir. 2009) (“Where an applicant seeks registration on the basis of Section 2(f), the mark's descriptiveness is a nonissue; an applicant’s reliance on Section 2(f) during prosecution presumes that the mark is descriptive.”). For the purposes of establishing that the subject matter is not inherently distinctive, the examining attorney may rely on this concession alone. Once an applicant has claimed that matter has acquired distinctiveness under §2(f), the issue to be determined is not whether the matter is inherently distinctive but, rather, whether it has acquired distinctiveness.

See, e.g., Yamaha Int’l Corp. v. Hoshino Gakki Co., 840 F.2d 1572, 1577, 6 USPQ2d 1001, 1005 (Fed. Cir. 1988); In re Cabot Corp., 15 USPQ2d 1224, 1229 (TTAB 1990); In re Prof’l Learning Ctrs., Inc., 230 USPQ 70, 71 (TTAB 1986); In re Chopper Indus., 222 USPQ 258, 259 (TTAB 1984).

Section 2(f) Claim Insufficient

As an initial matter, the applicant's claim of acquired distinctiveness under Section 2(f) is insufficient. The applicant initially asserted a claim of acquired distinctiveness under Section 2(f) in its March 6, 2014 response. The only evidence of acquired distinctiveness submitted with that response was a Canadian registration. After the examining attorney's initial refusal of the Section 2(f) claim, the applicant responded by submitting sales figures for the three and a half years the applicant had been operating in the United States. No other evidence of acquired distinctiveness was submitted.

As was discussed in the examining attorney's office action dated March 26, 2014, there are several factors to be weighed when examining evidence of acquired distinctiveness based on extrinsic evidence: (1) length and exclusivity of use of the mark in the United States by applicant; (2) the type, expense, and amount of advertising of the mark in the United States; and (3) applicant's efforts in the United States to associate the mark with the source of the goods and/or services, such as unsolicited media coverage and consumer studies. See In re Steelbuilding.com, 415 F.3d 1293, 1300, 75 USPQ2d 1420, 1424 (Fed. Cir. 2005); Bd. of Trs. v. Pitts, Jr., 107 USPQ2d 2001, 2016 (TTAB 2013). A showing of acquired distinctiveness need not consider all these factors, and no single factor is determinative. In re Steelbuilding.com, 415 F.3d at 1300, 75 USPQ2d at 1424; see TMEP §§1212.06 et seq. The USPTO will decide each case on its own merits.

As was discussed above, at the time of the applicant's initial claim of acquired distinctiveness, the applicant had only been operating in the United States for three and a half years. The applicant did not submit any evidence of the marketing and advertising programs in the United States. The applicant did not outline any efforts it made to associate the mark with any of its goods or services listed in the application, nor did it outline its advertising and promotional expenditures. In the request for reconsideration dated May 6, 2015, the applicant did submit another year of sales figures and an article written about the applicant that appeared in a trade magazine.

Due to the highly descriptive nature of the proposed mark, MAGNESITA, in relation to “refractory products not primarily of metal, namely, refractory bricks, refractory mixes for patching, lining or repairing high temperature apparatus and repairing the lining for furnaces, refractory furnace patching and repair mixes; and pre-cast refractory shapes” and for “providing information via a global computer network on the use of refractory products to construct, maintain and repair refractory apparatus using refractory products; and providing information via a global computer network on the use of mechanical equipment and computer models to construct, maintain and repair refractory installations,” the Section 2(f) claim is insufficient.

In the event that the Board finds as a preliminary matter that the applicant’s evidence is substantial and sufficient enough to support a Section 2(f) claim of acquired distinctiveness, the examining attorney submits that the Section 2(f) claim fails because the proposed mark is generic as applied to the applicant’s goods.<sup>1</sup>

Proposed Mark Is Generic for the Refractory Products

And Related Information Services

Generic terms require refusal because they are common names that the relevant purchasing public understands primarily as describing the genus of the applicant’s goods or services. In re Dial-A-Mattress Operating Corp., 240 F.3d 1341, 1344, 57 USPQ 2d 1807, 1810 (Fed. Cir. 2001);

<sup>1</sup> A discussion of the sufficiency of the Section 2(f) claim with respect to the services in International Class 37 was never reached because of the paltry nature of the evidence submitted with the applicant’s responses.

H. Marvin Ginn Corp v. Int’l Ass’n of Fire Chiefs, Inc., 782 F.2d 987, 989-90, 228 USPQ 528, 530 (Fed. Cir.1986). See TMEP §1209.01(c). Generic terms, by definition incapable of indicating source, are the antithesis of trademarks, and can never attain trademark status. In re Merrill Lynch, Pierce, Fenner, & Smith, Inc., 828 F.2d 1567, 1569, 4 USPQ2d 1141, 1142 (Fed.Cir. 1987); see TMEP §1209.01(c). Refusal is required because registering generic terms “would grant the owner of [a] mark a monopoly, since a competitor could not describe the goods as they are. In re Merrill Lynch, Pierce, Fenner, & Smith, Inc., 828 F.2d at 1569, 4 USPQ2d at 1142.

Determining whether a mark is generic requires a two-step inquiry:

(1) What is the genus of goods and/or services at issue?

(2) Does the relevant public understand the designation primarily to refer to that genus of goods and/or services?

In re 1800Mattress.com IP, LLC, 586 F.3d 1359, 1363, 92 USPQ2d 1682, 1684 (Fed. Cir. 2009) (quoting H. Marvin Ginn Corp. v. Int’l Ass’n of Fire Chiefs, Inc., 782 F.2d 987, 989-90, 228 USPQ 528, 530 (Fed. Cir. 1986)); TMEP §1209.01(c)(i).

Regarding the first part of the inquiry, the genus of the goods and/or services is often defined by an applicant’s identification of goods and/or services. See In re Country Music Ass’n, 100 USPQ2d 1824, 1827-28 (TTAB 2011) (citing Magic Wand Inc. v. RDB Inc., 940 F.2d 638, 640, 19 USPQ2d 1551, 1552 (Fed. Cir. 1991)).

In this case, the identification, and thus the genus, is “Refractory products not made primarily of metal, namely, refractory bricks, refractory mixes for patching, lining or repairing high temperature apparatus and repairing the lining for furnaces, refractory furnace patching and repair mixes”. This application also includes services for “providing information via a global computer network on the use of refractory products to construct, maintain and repair refractory apparatus using refractory products; and providing information via a global computer network on the use of mechanical equipment and computer models to construct, maintain and repair refractory installations.”<sup>2</sup>

Regarding the second part of the inquiry, the relevant public is the purchasing or consuming public for the identified goods and/or services. Frito-Lay N. Am., Inc. v. Princeton Vanguard, LLC, 109 USPQ2d 1949, 1952 (TTAB 2014) (citing Magic Wand Inc. v. RDB Inc., 940 F.2d at 640, 19 USPQ2d at 1553). In this case, the relevant public is large industrial operations that require large scale refractory apparatus.

Determining whether an applied-for mark is generic turns on if “the relevant public primarily uses or understands the mark to refer to the category or [genus] of goods [and/or services] in question.” In re Nordic Naturals, Inc., 755 F.3d 1340, 1342, 111 USPQ2d 1495, 1497 (Fed. Cir. 2014); see H. Marvin Ginn Corp. v. Int’l Ass’n of Fire Chiefs, Inc., 782 F.2d 987, 989-90, 228 USPQ 528, 530 (Fed. Cir. 1986); TMEP §1209.01(c). In such a determination, the “relevant public” represents the purchasing or consuming public for the identified goods and/or services. Frito-Lay N. Am., Inc. v. Princeton Vanguard, LLC, 109 USPQ2d 1949, 1952 (TTAB 2014) (citing Magic Wand Inc. v. RDB Inc., 940 F.2d 638, 640, 19 USPQ2d 1551, 1553 (Fed. Cir. 1991)).

The applicant states that the examining attorney has not demonstrated that the relevant purchasing public for the applicant's goods and services is large-scale industrial consumers. The examining attorney points to the article submitted by the applicant (Applicant's Request for Reconsideration, May 6, 2015, page 2) that discusses the fact that in Brazil, Magnesita controls 70% of the steel refractories market and 80% of the cement refractories market. Steel and cement refractories are not the general public consumers. They are large scale industrial consumers. Moreover, the applicant's declaration discusses sales of the refractory products in "metric tons, " which also points to large scale industry. The applicant does not state that it only offers its goods and services to industrial customers; however, the article states that the applicant is attempting to expand its customer base by acquiring the German company. The article also discusses the large scale expansion into other parts of the world the applicant hopes to achieve through the acquisition of the German company.

Key Component of the Goods And Services

As discussed above, the applicant' goods are "refractory bricks, refractory mixes for patching, lining or repairing high temperature apparatus and repairing the lining for furnaces, refractory furnace patching and repair mixes; and pre-cast refractory shapes." The applicant states that the examining attorney is erroneous in her assertion that because magnesia or magnesite is a component of the applicant's goods, the term is generic when used in connection with the goods.

The name of an ingredient, a key aspect, a central focus or feature, or a main characteristic of goods and/or services may be generic for those goods and/or services. See In re Hotels.com LP, 573 F.3d 1300, 1304, 91 USPQ2d 1532, 1535 (Fed. Cir. 2009) (affirming the Trademark Trial and Appeal Board's holding of HOTELS.COM as generic for travel agency services, namely, making reservations and bookings for temporary lodging, and providing information about temporary lodging); In re Meridian Rack &

Inc., 777 F.2d 1556, 1559-60, 227 USPQ 961, 963-64 (Fed. Honickman, 808 F.2d 291, 292, 1 USPQ2d 1364, 1365 (3d Cir. 1986) (holding CHOCOLATE FUDGE generic for diet sodas). Thus, a term does not need to be the name of a specific product and/or service to be found generic. See In re Eddie Z's Blinds & Drapery, Inc., 74 USPQ2d 1037, 1042 (TTAB 2005) (holding BLINDSANDDRAPERY.COM generic for online retail store services featuring blinds, draperies, and other wall coverings); In re Candy Bouquet Int'l, Inc., 73 USPQ2d 1883, 1888 (TTAB 2004) (holding CANDY BOUQUET generic for "retail, mail, and computer order services in the field of gift packages of candy"); In re Ricci-Italian Silversmiths, Inc., 16 USPQ2d 1727, 1729-30 (TTAB 1990) (holding ART DECO generic for flatware); In re Hask Toiletries, Inc., 223 USPQ 1254, 1255 (TTAB 1984) (holding HENNA 'N' PLACENTA generic for hair conditioner).

In the office action dated March 26, 2015, the examining attorney attached excerpts from different chemical dictionaries. On page 2 of that office actions is a page from Hawley's Condensed Chemical Dictionary, Fourteenth Ed., ©2001, that define magnesite, magnesite and dead-burned magnesite. The dictionary states that magnesite is often used as a synonym for magnesite. The dictionary also states that dead burned magnesite is suitable as a refractory. In the Concise Encyclopedia of Chemical Technology, Firth Ed., vol 2, ©2007, (Office Action dated March 26, 2014, page 7) magnesium oxide is discussed as the principle commercial forms of magnesite. The primary uses of the goods are for metallurgical furnace products. The applicant's clients include many steel refractories.

On page 11 of the same office action, the Materials Handbook, Fourteenth Ed, © 1997, states that magnesite is used in the manufacture of bricks for basic refractory furnace linings. Finally, on page 15 of the March 26, 2014, office action, the McGraw-Hill Dictionary of Materials Science, © 2003, defines magnesia refractory as heat and corrosion resistant material made of magnesium oxide used in cement or brick form to line high-temperature process vessels or furnaces. In the article attached to the applicant's May 6, 2015, request for reconsideration on page 2, the first line of the article refers to the applicant as a leading Brazilian magnesite producer.

It is possible that not every product produced by the applicant contains magnesite; however, it is clear that magnesite or magnesia is an important component in refractory products. The applicant's goods are refractory products. The applicant attempted to amend the application to proceed under Section 2(f), which is an acknowledgement that the proposed mark MAGNESITA describes the goods. The applicant's goods are made with magnesia or magnesite. It should be noted that the article submitted by the applicant (Applicant's Request for Reconsideration, May 6, 2015, page 2) discusses the fact that it is "Brazil's leading magnesite producer" and it has acquired a German "refractories group, gaining a global customer base and raw material supply. (emphasis supplied) In fact, the applicant touts "[there will be] no other company like ours in the refractory industry." The applicant will offer "a range of magnesite . . . products to its combined customer base . . ." (emphasis supplied) Therefore, contrary to applicant's assertion, it is clear that applicant's proposed mark is generic for applicant's refractory goods and services.

Translation of Foreign Wording

Under the doctrine of foreign equivalents, a mark that consists of or comprises a word or words from a modern foreign language will be translated into English to determine genericness. Palm Bay Imps., Inc. v. Veuve Clicquot Ponsardin Maison Fondée en 1772, 396 F.3d 1369, 1377, 73 USPQ2d 1689, 1696 (Fed. Cir. 2005); see In re Sambado & Son Inc., 45 USPQ2d 1312, 1315 (TTAB 1997); TMEP §1209.03(g).

The doctrine is applied when it is likely that an ordinary American purchaser would “stop and translate” the foreign term into its English equivalent. Palm Bay Imps., Inc. v. Veuve Clicquot Ponsardin Maison Fondée en 1772, 396 F.3d at 1377, 73 USPQ2d at 1696 (quoting In re Pan Tex Hotel Corp., 190 USPQ 109, 110 (TTAB 1976)); cf. TMEP §1207.01(b)(vi)(A). The ordinary American purchaser refers to “all American purchasers, including those proficient in a non-English language who would ordinarily be expected to translate words into English.” In re Spirits Int’l, N.V., 563 F.3d 1347, 1352, 90 USPQ2d 1489, 1492 (Fed. Cir. 2009); see In re Thomas, 79 USPQ2d 1021, 1024 (TTAB 2006) (citing J. Thomas McCarthy, McCarthy on Trademarks & Unfair Competition §23:36 (4th ed., rev. 2006), which states “[t]he test is whether, to those American buyers familiar with the [modern] foreign language, the word would denote its English equivalent.”).

Generally, the doctrine is applied when the English translation is a literal and exact translation of the foreign wording. See In re Oriental Daily News, Inc., 230 USPQ 637, 638 (TTAB 1986); In re Zazzara, 156 USPQ 348, 348 (TTAB 1967); TMEP §1209.03(g).

In the applicant's response to the first office action dated August 14, 2013, the applicant amended the application to include the translation of MAGNESITA as "magnesite" or "magnesia." The examining attorney has also included translations of MAGNESITA as "magnesite" or "magnesia" from Spanish or Portuguese. The translations are attachments to the office action dated February 27, 2013. Common, modern languages include Spanish, French, Italian, German, Chinese, Japanese, Russian, Polish, Hungarian, Serbian and Yiddish. See, e.g., Weiss Noodle Co. v. Golden Cracknel & Specialty Co., 290 F.2d 845, 129 USPQ 411 (C.C.P.A. 1961) (Hungarian); In re Aquamar, Inc., 115 USPQ2d 1122 (TTAB 2015) (Spanish); *In re Tokutake Indus. In the applicant's request for reconsideration dated May 6, 2015, the applicant attached copies of various websites for refractory products. The applicant's attorney conducted a search of many websites featuring refractory products. The applicant's attorney attached a declaration attesting to the fact that he conducted a search for the term MAGNESITA on all these websites and did not find the term MAGNESITA on any of these websites. The websites attached are all English language websites. The examining attorney submits that even though the word MAGNESITA is not found on the English language websites provided by the applicant or in English language dictionaries, this is not probative. That is because the foreign equivalent of a merely descriptive English word is no more registrable than the English word itself. “[A] word taken from a well-known foreign modern language, which is, itself, descriptive of a product, will be so considered when it is attempted to be registered as a trade-mark in the United States for the same product. In re N. Paper Mills, 64 F.2d 998, 1002, 17 USPQ 492, 493 (C.C.P.A. 1933) See In re Tokutake Indus. Co., 87 USPQ2d 1697 (TTAB 2008) (AYUMI and its Japanese-character equivalent held merely descriptive for footwear where the evidence, including applicant’s own admissions, indicated that the primary meaning of applicant’s mark is “walking”); In re Oriental Daily News, Inc., 230 USPQ 637 (TTAB 1986) (Chinese characters that mean ORIENTAL DAILY NEWS held merely descriptive of newspapers); In re Geo. A. Hormel & Co., 227 USPQ 813 (TTAB 1985) (SAPORITO, an Italian word meaning “tasty,” held merely descriptive because it describes a desirable characteristic of applicant’s dry sausage).

Furthermore, the examining attorney conducted her own search of those same websites for the term “magnesite” or “magnesia.” The results are attached to the denial of the request for reconsideration, dated July, 13, 2015. The examining attorney searched these terms in connection with specific products listed on the websites provided by the applicant. Magnesium Oxide, Magnesia and Magnesite are used interchangeably. (Examining Attorney’s Denial of the Request for Reconsideration, July 13, 2015, page 7) Many of the product information sheets list magnesium oxide as a component of the refractory bricks or other refractory product.

As was discussed in the Denial of the Request for Reconsideration, July 13, 2015, none of the websites list “magnesita” as a component of any of the goods. All of these websites are English language websites; therefore, a Portuguese or Spanish language term would not be expected on any of these websites. However, magnesium oxide, magnesite and magnesia do appear on the product specifications sheets for a variety of the refractory products listed on these websites.

For example, the Zicoa.com website may not have “magnesita” listed as an input in its refractory products. However, the website does state that magnesia is a component in its Zircoa backup products. On the website Firebrickengineers.com, “magnesita” is not mentioned but magnesia is mentioned as a component of its Ladlemax products. The Mineraltec.com website does not list “magnesita” as a component of any of the goods but MgO the chemical symbol for magnesium oxide is listed as a component of the applicant’s goods. (See Denial of the Request for Reconsideration, July 13, 2015, pages 11-28)

Meanwhile, the applicant attached many websites that are not relevant to this application. For example, the applicant also attached excerpts of websites from Wal-Mart®, Home Depot® and Lowe’s®, which are large retailers that sell thousands of different product to the general public. These retailers sell one or two refractory products for residential use. However, the applicant is a large scale industrial supplier of refractory products to the steel and cement industries, among other industries. The applicant has also attached other websites that are tangentially related to refractory products, such as a company that tests “thermal process verification, thermo-analytical instruments and materials testing services” for refractory products.

The applicant's mark, MAGNESITA, translates to magnesite or magnesia, which is a component of the applicant's refractory products in International Class 19. The proposed mark is also generic for the provision of information via global computer network on the use of refractory products to construct, maintain, and repair refractory apparatus using refractory products and the provision of information via global computer network on the use of mechanical equipment and computer models to construct, maintain, and repair refractory installations in International Class 37 because the services relate to magnesite or magnesia as components of the refractory products. Therefore, it is appropriate to translate the proposed mark into English because MAGNESITA translates to magnesite or magnesia from Portuguese and Spanish, which are considered modern languages.

CONCLUSION

The proposed mark, MAGNESITA, means magnesite or magnesia in English. The examining attorney has demonstrated that magnesite or magnesia is a common component in refractory products which are the applicant's goods. As such the proposed mark is generic for the applicant's goods and the related information services regarding such products.

Furthermore, even if the proposed mark is not considered generic for the applicant's goods and services, the applicant has not met the burden of showing the mark has acquired distinctiveness under Section 2(f) because the evidence submitted is insufficient. The examining attorney respectfully requests that the Board affirm the refusal to register the proposed mark under Section 2(e)(1).

APPLICANT'S REPLY BRIEF
U.S. Application No. 85834316

ARGUMENT

Applicant Magnesita Refractories Company respectfully submits the following reply brief in response to the Examining Attorney's Appeal Brief dated November 19, 2015, which suggests that applicant's claim of acquired distinctiveness under Section 2(f) is insufficient and even if the "evidence is substantial and sufficient enough to support a Section 2(f) claim of acquired distinctiveness," "the Section 2(f) claim fails because the proposed mark is generic as applied to the applicant's goods." Applicant respectfully disagrees with the Examining Attorney's conclusions since the Examining Attorney has improperly weighed the significance of Applicant's evidence of acquired distinctiveness and misinterprets Applicant's goods and services, the relevant public, and components of refractory products and services in determining the genericness of the mark.

A. THE EXAMINING ATTORNEY HAS BASED THE INSUFFICIENCY OF
THE SECTION 2(F) CLAIM ON A MISUNDERSTANDING OF APPLICANT'S GOODS AND SERVICES

The Examining Attorney on pages 3-5 of the Examining Attorney's Appeal Brief suggests that the Section 2(f) claim is insufficient "[d]ue to the highly descriptive nature of the proposed mark, MAGNESITA." Applicant, however, submits that the purchasing public would have understood that the mark "MAGNESITA" is not highly descriptive of Applicant's goods and services, but is at most merely descriptive and, therefore, the Director should accept as prima facie evidence that the mark has become distinctive with proof of substantially exclusive and continuous use for more than five years.

APPLICANT'S REPLY BRIEF
U.S. Application No. 85834316

Specifically, the Examining Attorney fails to appreciate that the amount and character of such evidence depends on the facts of each case, which necessarily varies, depending upon the degree of descriptiveness involved, and becomes progressively greater as the descriptiveness of the term increases. See In re Mine Safety Appliances Co., 66 U.S.P.Q.2d 1694 * 3 (TTAB 2002) (non-precedential) (citing Yamaha Int'l Corp. v. Hoshino Gakki Co., 840 F.2d 1572, 6 USPQ2d 1001, 1008 (Fed. Cir. 1988)); In re Whitetail Inst. Of North America, Inc., 2014 WL 1390517 * 2 (TTAB 2014) (non-precedential).

Instead of merely concluding that the proposed mark is “highly descriptive,” as suggested by the Examining Attorney on page 4 of the Examining Attorney’s Appeal Brief, Applicant submits that the Examining Attorney erred by not establishing whether the mark is highly descriptive by initially determining whether the mark immediately tells prospective customers about the features of the applicant’s goods and services, and then whether the record has a sufficient number of references to establish that the mark is highly descriptive. See In re Greek Gourmet, Inc., 2000 WL 1720159 * 2 (TTAB 2000) (non-precedential); see also In re the Kyjen Company, Inc., 2012 WL 1424429 * 6 (TTAB 2012) (non-precedential), In re Whitetail Inst. Of North America, Inc., 2014 WL 1390517 * 3.

In this case, the Examining Attorney has not provided the necessary evidence to establish that the mark “MAGNESITA” is highly descriptive of Applicant’s goods and services by immediately telling prospective customers about the features of Applicant’s goods and services, as evidenced by a sufficient number of references, but is instead improperly narrowing Applicant’s goods and services to refractory products and services related to magnesite and magnesia.

APPLICANT'S REPLY BRIEF
U.S. Application No. 85834316

For example, the category of goods and services at issue is refractory products and information services, where the goods are “refractory products not primarily of metal, namely, refractory bricks, refractory mixes for patching, lining or repairing high temperature apparatus and repairing the lining for furnaces, refractory furnace patching and repair mixes; and pre-cast refractory shapes,” while the services are “providing information via a global computer network on the use of refractory products to construct, maintain and repair refractory apparatus using refractory products; and providing information via a global computer network on the use of mechanical equipment and computer models to construct, maintain and repair refractory installations.”

As evidenced by a third party website excerpt about Applicant, “The Company benefits from some of the largest and highest quality reserves of dolomite, magnesite, and talc in the world. Magnesita also has other mineral deposits, including chromite and several clays through Brazil. The Company is able to use 80% (by volume) of its own raw materials in the production of refractories.” See page 6 of the Final Office Action in the TSDR dated November 10, 2014. Further, the types of products Applicant produces include: 1) Bricks and Shapes of: Alumina, Alumina Mag Carbon/Mag, Alumina Carbon, Alumina Silicon Carbide, Bottom Pour, Doloma/Magnesia Doloma- fired and cured, Magnesia Carbon, Magnesia Chrome, Magnesia Spinel, and Pre-cast and –basic and alumina and 2) Bulk Refractories of: Castables – basic and alumina, Coatings, Dry Vibratables, Gunning Mixes, Mortars, Plastics, Ramming Mix, and Taphole Mix (at page 7 of the Final Office Action in the TSDR dated November 10, 2014). In other words, Applicant submits that the prospective customers would understand that Applicant’s goods and services are related to various products and services having at least alumina, carbon, silicon, and magnesia.

On the other hand, the Examining Attorney has only provided evidence that the English translation of "MAGNESITA" is "magnesite" or "magnesia" and that magnesite and magnesia can be one of several components in refractory products and that one use of magnesia and magnesite is for refractory products. For example, while the Examining Attorney has established magnesia can be used as a component of the goods sold on various websites, e.g. refractory brick, lining, etc., the Examining Attorney has also established that other materials can be used for such refractory products. For instance, as seen in the printed web-page for Vitcas provided by the Examining Attorney on July 13, 2015, the refractory mortars are high alumina refractories, e.g., 44-88%  $\text{Al}_2\text{O}_3$  with varying concentrations of iron oxide,  $\text{Fe}_2\text{O}_3$  (at pages 7-9 of the Request for Reconsideration Denied in the TSDR). Similarly, as seen in the printed web-page for Zircoa, the refractory backup primarily includes custom granular Zirconium Oxide in unstabilized (pure) form or stabilized (combined) with yttrium oxide, magnesium oxide, or calcium oxide for structural stability (at page 14 of the Request for Reconsideration Denied in the TSDR). Additionally, while the Examining Attorney has provided evidence that magnesite and magnesia can be used for refractories, the Examining Attorney has also established that magnesite and magnesia can also be used for polycrystalline ceramics, electrical insulation, pharmaceuticals and cosmetics, paper manufacture, etc. (at pages 6-7 of the Office action dated March 26, 2014). In other words, the purchasing public would understand that while magnesite or magnesia can be used in refractory products, not only can magnesite and magnesia be used for other purposes, the refractory products themselves are not necessarily composed of magnesite or magnesia, but can instead be primarily composed of alumina, silica, or zirconium.

APPLICANT'S REPLY BRIEF

In fact, the Examining Attorney has not provided any evidence that magnesite, magnesia, or the mark "MAGNESITA" would immediately tell prospective customers that Applicant's goods and services are related to "refractory products not primarily of metal, namely, refractory bricks, refractory mixes for patching, lining or repairing high temperature apparatus and repairing the lining for furnaces, refractory furnace patching and repair mixes; and pre-cast refractory shapes," and "providing information via a global computer network on the use of refractory products to construct, maintain and repair refractory apparatus using refractory products; and providing information via a global computer network on the use of mechanical equipment and computer models to construct, maintain and repair refractory installations," respectively. Rather, as evidenced by the declaration filed May 6, 2015, Applicant has not found any instance where the mark "MAGNESITA" was used to describe the refractory product, but rather, only observed the generic terms "castable refractories," "precast refractory shapes," "mortar," "castable," "fire brick," and "refractory brick" as being used to describe the refractory products and information services. See In re Greek Gourmet, Inc., 2000 WL 1720159 * 2 (non-precedential) ("Thus, if it were the case that the mark GREEK GOURMET was highly descriptive, if not generic, as contended by the Examining Attorney, then it is hard to understand how there were fewer than 70 references to this term during a time span of nearly 30 years. The most plausible answer is that this term is not highly descriptive, but rather is, as contended by applicant, simply merely descriptive.")

Therefore, Applicant submits that since the Examining Attorney has not provided any evidence that the terms magnesia, and magnesite, let alone the mark "MAGNESITA" have been used by anyone, let alone, by competitors, to immediately describe to prospective customers refractory products and information services, the mark "MAGNESITA" cannot be highly descriptive of the recited products or services, and is at most merely descriptive.

APPLICANT'S REPLY BRIEF

In view of the merely descriptive nature of the mark "MAGNESITA," Applicant submits that the Examining Attorney erred in suggesting that the Section 2(f) claim of acquired distinctiveness is insufficient, since the Examining Attorney should have accepted as prima facie evidence that the mark has become distinctive with proof of substantially exclusive and continuous use.

Specifically, the Examining Attorney should have accepted the declarations filed September 23, 2014 and May 6, 2015 as prima facie evidence that the mark has acquired distinctiveness based on, at least, the more than five years of exclusive and continuous use of the mark "MAGNESITA." The Declaration of Gross Sales establishes that the mark "MAGNESITA" has been used in association with the sale of refractory products in excess of US $103,000,000 in 2010, in excess of US $200,000,000 in 2011, in excess of US $200,000,000 in 2012, in excess of US $230,000,000 in 2013, and in excess of $220,000,000 in 2014. Moreover, Applicant has exclusively and continuously used the mark "MAGNESITA" in commerce since 2008. That is, Applicant has almost sold 1 billion dollars of refractory products during this period under the mark "MAGNESITA," which clearly establishes that the mark "MAGNESITA" indicates that Applicant is the source of the goods and services.

Therefore, similar to this Board's holding in In re J.T. Posey Co., where the Board held that "in view of the facts that (i) there is no dictionary definition for "skin sleeve," (ii) with numerous competitors in the field of medical protective fabric skin coverings for wound prevention, there is vague evidence in a website advertisement of only one competitor using the term, and (iii) there are only three academic articles referencing the term “skin sleeves,” we find that SKINSLEEVES is not so highly descriptive that its registrability under Section 2(f) may not be determined on the basis of Applicant’s declaration of substantially exclusive and continuous use since 2004,” this Board should hold that since there is no evidence that the terms magnesite, magnesia, let along the mark “MAGNESITA” is used to describe refractory products or services even in view of the numerous competitors in the field, Applicant’s declaration of substantially exclusive and continuous use should allow registrability under Section 2(f). In re J.T. Posey Co., 2015 WL 5170955 * 14 (TTAB 2015) (non-precedential).

For at least this reason, Applicant submits that the Examining Attorney has improperly weighed the evidence for the claim of acquired distinctiveness to determine Applicant’s claim of acquired distinctiveness as being insufficient, and the reversal of the Examining Attorney’s refusal is requested.

B. THE EXAMINING ATTORNEY ERRED IN DETERMINING GENERICNESS OF THE MARK BY MISCHARACTERIZING THE RELEVANT PUBLIC.

The Examining Attorney on page 6 of the Examining Attorney’s Appeal Brief maintains the erroneous characterizing of the relevant public as only large-scale industrial consumers. Specifically, the Examining Attorney points to the article submitted by the Applicant that Magnesita controls 70% of the steel refractories market and 80% of the cement refractories market and the fact that the quantity of sales of the refractory product is in “metric tons.”

APPLICANT'S REPLY BRIEF
U.S. Application No. 85834316

As discussed by the Court of Appeals for the Federal Circuit (“CAFC”), however, the relevant public is limited to actual or potential purchasers of the goods or services. Magic Wand, Inc. v. RDB, Inc., 940 F.2d 638, 641 (Fed. Cir. 1991). In making this determination, the TTAB should look at the identification of goods to determine the potential or actual customers. Id. at 641.

In so doing, instead of relying on Applicant’s business and sales, the Examining Attorney still continues to err in making its genericness determination by not relying on the definition of goods and services of the present application to determine the actual or potential customers of the identified goods. Applicant submits that since the relevant public for a genericness determination is the actual or potential purchaser of the goods or services, the relevant public in this case is any actual or potential purchaser of refractory products or information services, which in this case is the general public. See Magic Wand, Inc., 940 F.2d at 641. As is clear from the plain reading of the identification of goods in Class 19 “refractory products not primarily of metal, namely, refractory bricks, refractory mixes for patching, lining or repairing high temperature apparatus and repairing the lining for furnaces, refractory furnace patching and repair mixes; and pre-cast refractory shapes” and services in Class 37 “providing information via a global computer network on the use of refractory products to construct, maintain and repair refractory apparatus using refractory products; and providing information via a global computer network on the use of mechanical equipment and computer models to construct, maintain and repair refractory installations,” the refractory products and information services are not limited to a particular group of customers, but to any actual or potential purchaser. In other words, since any doubt on the issue of genericness is resolved in favor of the applicant, the relevant public in this genericness determination is the general public, because the general public actually or potentially purchases the refractory products and information services. See In re Interfashion U.S.A., Inc., 2006 WL 3147914 * 3 (TTAB 2006).

C. THE EXAMINING ATTORNEY INCORRECTLY MISCHARACTERIZES
APPLICANT'S GOODS AND SERVICES IN MAKING A GENERICNESS DETERMINATION

The Examining Attorney on page 7 of the Examining Attorney's Appeal Brief suggests that the name of an ingredient, a key aspect, a central focus or feature, or a main characteristic of goods and/or services may be generic for those goods and services. The Examining Attorney then suggests that since different chemical dictionaries suggest that the primary use of the goods are for metallurgical furnace products, "it is clear that applicant's proposed mark is generic for applicant's refractory goods and services."

Even assuming, but not admitting, that the relevant public is in fact large industrial consumers, as suggested by the Examining Attorney, Applicant submits that in determining the second step of the genericness determination, the court must determine whether members of the relevant public primarily use or understand the term sought to be protected to refer to the genus of goods or services in question. See H. Marvin Ginn Corp. v. Int'l Ass'n of Fire Chiefs, Inc., 782 F.2d 987, 990, 228 U.S.P.Q. 528 (Fed. Cir. 1986); see also TMEP § 1209.01(c).

As an initial matter, Applicant submits that the Examining Attorney has not established that magnesia or magnesite, let alone the mark "MAGNESITA," is a primary component in all refractory products or that magnesia or magnesite is only used as refractory products. Rather, as clearly seen in the evidence of record, refractory products can be made from a number of different materials, including calcia, yttria, magnesia, silica, and alumina. For instance, as seen in the printed web-page for Vitcas provided by the Examining Attorney on July 13, 2015, the refractory mortars are high alumina refractories, e.g., 44-88%  $\text{Al}_2\text{O}_3$  with varying concentrations of iron oxide,  $\text{Fe}_2\text{O}_3$  (at pages 7-8 of the Request for Reconsideration Denied in the TSDR). Similarly, as seen in the printed web-page for Zircoa, the refractory backup primarily includes custom granular Zirconium Oxide in unstabilized (pure) form or stabilized (combined) with yttrium oxide, magnesium oxide, or calcium oxide for structural stability (at pages 14-16 of the Request for Reconsideration Denied in the TSDR). Additionally, while the Examining Attorney has provided evidence that magnesite and magnesia can be used for refractories, the Examining Attorney has also established that magnesite and magnesia can also be used for polycrystalline ceramics, electrical insulation, pharmaceuticals and cosmetics, paper manufacture, etc. (at pages 6-7 of the Office Action dated March 26, 2014).

Moreover, Applicant submits that Applicant's products include: 1) Bricks and Shapes of: Alumina, Alumina Mag Carbon/Mag, Alumina Carbon, Alumina Silicon Carbide, Bottom Pour, Doloma/Magnesia Doloma- fired and cured, Magnesia Carbon, Magnesia Chrome, Magnesia Spinel, and Pre-cast and –basic and alumina and 2) Bulk Refractories of: Castables – basic and alumina, Coatings, Dry Vibratables, Gunning Mixes, Mortars, Plastics, Ramming Mix, and Taphole Mix (page 7 of the Final Office Action in the TSDR dated November 10, 2014).

That is, while the name of an ingredient, a key aspect, a central focus or feature, or a main characteristic of goods and/or services may be generic, in this case, the Examining Attorney has failed to establish that magnesite, magnesia, or let alone the mark "MAGNESITA" is a key component in refractory products, let alone, a key component in Applicant's goods and services in the present application.

Nevertheless, Applicant submits that the test for genericness is not whether any ingredient may be generic for the goods and services, but rather, whether the relevant public would primarily use or understand the term sought to be protected to refer to the genus of goods and services in question. See H. Marvin Ginn Corp., 782 F.2d at 991.

In this case, Applicant submits that the Examining Attorney has not provided record evidence that establishes that magnesite, magnesia, or the term “MAGNESITA” is used by the relevant public to primarily refer to the class of refractory products and information services claimed by Applicant. Rather, the Examining Attorney only predominantly relies on the fact that since magnesia or magnesite is used in refractory products, “it is clear that magnesite or magnesia is an important component in refractory products” to determine that the mark “MAGNESITA” is generic. As discussed above, however, the relevant public would have understood that refractory products are not limited to only products containing magnesite or magnesia, but also include different materials, including calcia, yttria, silica, and alumina. In so doing, Applicant argued on page 14 of the Applicant’s Brief of September 21, 2015 that the relevant public uses the terms “castable refractories,” “precast refractory shapes,” “mortar,” “castable,” “fire brick,” and “refractory brick” as the generic terms for various refractory products and information services, but does not use magnesite, magnesia, or the mark “MAGNESITA” to refer to such refractory products, which the Examining Attorney disregards and does not take into account. For example, Allied Mineral Products refers to its products as “refractory products,” “castable refractories,” and “precast refractory shapes.” (Dec. ¶ 4) (Declaration filed with the Request for Reconsideration of May 6, 2015). Similarly, BNZ Materials, Inc. uses the generic term “insulating firebrick, (Dec. ¶

7), while Fire Brick Engineers Company uses the generic terms “refractory products” and “fire brick.” (Dec. ¶ 12).

In other words, while the Examining Attorney has established that other competitors use magnesite or magnesia as an ingredient or component, in some of their refractory products, the Examining Attorney has not provided any evidence that the relevant public, let alone competitors, use magnesite, magnesia, or the mark “MAGNESITA” to primarily refer to any of the competitors’ refractory products or services. See In re Minnetonka, Inc., 3 USPQ2d 1711, 1987 WL 124303 * 3 (TTAB 1987) (“This body of evidence is persuasive, and the Examining Attorney does not claim otherwise, to show that there exists a fairly substantial number of competitors in the business of selling liquid hand soap; that none of these competitors uses the term ‘soft soap’ descriptively, generically or otherwise in connection with its product.”)

In fact, the Examining Attorney is failing to appreciate that Applicant’s goods and services are not magnesia or magnesite, but rather the goods are “refractory products not made primarily of metal” and services for “providing information via a global computer network on the use of refractory products,” where magnesite is a compound in Class 1 and not in Class 19 or 37.

That is, Applicant does not observe the necessary clear evidence that establishes that the relevant public uses or understands the terms magnesia and magnesite, let alone the term “MAGNESITA,” to primarily refer to the refractory brick or lining, i.e., the record lacks clear evidence that shows that the terms magnesia, magnesite, or “MAGNESITA” are generic and primarily refer to the refractory brick or lining being sold.

APPLICANT'S REPLY BRIEF
U.S. Application No. 85834316

Since the Examining Attorney has failed to establish by clear evidence that the mark "MAGNESITA" is generic for the identified goods and services, the reversal of the Examining Attorney's genericness determination is requested.

CONCLUSION

Applicant respectfully submits that the application should be approved for registration on the Principal Register because the mark "MAGNESITA" is not generic for the recited goods in the present application and has acquired distinctiveness. Applicant respectfully requests that this Board reverse the refusal of registration.

Respectfully submitted,

Opinion by Kuhlke, Administrative Trademark Judge:

Magnesita Refractories Company (“Applicant”) seeks registration of the word
MAGNESITA as a standard character mark.

Application Serial No. 77873477

In Application Serial No. 77873477, Applicant seeks to register the applied-for matter for:

<sup>1</sup> In view of the common issues present in these appeals, the appeals were consolidated for the hearing and the Board is deciding them in this single decision. Citations to the record and briefs are to Application Serial No. 77873477 unless otherwise noted.

Serial Nos. 77873477; 85834316

Refractory products not made primarily of metal, namely, refractory bricks, refractory mixes for patching, lining or repairing high temperature apparatus and repairing the lining for furnaces, refractory furnace patching and repair mixes, in International Class 19; and

Providing information via a global computer network on constructing, maintaining, and repairing refractory apparatus using refractory products, in International Class 37.

The Application was filed on November 19, 2009 under Section 1(b) of the Trademark Act based on a bona fide intention to use the applied-for matter in commerce. The Application includes the following translation statement: The English translation of “MAGNESITA” is “magnesia” or “magnesite.”

The Examining Attorney refused registration under Section 2(e)(1) of the Trademark Act, 15 U.S.C. §1052(e)(1), on the ground that the applied-for matter is merely descriptive of Applicant’s goods and services. After the Examining Attorney issued a final refusal, on June 13, 2011, Applicant filed an Amendment to Allege Use and a Request for Reconsideration. In addition, on September 30, 2013, Applicant amended its application to seek registration under Section 2(f), 15 U.S.C. § 1052(f), based on acquired distinctiveness. The Examining Attorney continued to refuse registration based on mere descriptiveness under Section 2(e)(1), indicating the showing under Section 2(f) was insufficient. On March 29, 2014, Applicant filed a Request for Reconsideration and an amendment to the Supplemental Register. The Examining Attorney accepted the amendment to the Supplemental Register for the services in International Class 37, but refused registration on the Supplemental Register for the goods in International Class 19 under Section 23(c), 15 U.S.C. §

1091(c), of the Trademark Act on the ground that MAGNESITA is generic for those goods.

Thus, the only issue remaining for determination by the Board in Application Serial No. 77873477 is whether MAGNESITA is generic for the goods listed in Class 19 and therefore unregistrable on the Supplemental Register.<sup>2</sup>

Application Serial No. 85834316

In Application Serial No. 85834316, Applicant seeks to register the applied-for matter for:

refractory products not primarily of metal, namely, refractory bricks, refractory mixes for patching, lining or repairing high temperature apparatus and repairing the lining for furnaces, refractory furnace patching and repair mixes; and pre-cast refractory shapes, in International Class 19; and providing information via a global computer network on the use of refractory products to construct, maintain and repair refractory apparatus using refractory products; and providing information via a global computer network on the use of mechanical equipment and computer models to construct, maintain and repair refractory installations, in International Class 37.

This application was filed on January 28, 2013, under Section 1(a) of the Trademark Act based on an allegation of first use and use in commerce on October 1, 2010. During prosecution of the application Applicant amended its date of first use to October, 2008. The Application includes the following translation statement: The

English translation of “MAGNESITA” in the mark is “MAGNESITE” or “MAGNESIA.”

The Trademark Examining Attorney initially refused registration of Applicant’s applied-for matter under Section 2(e)(1) of the Trademark Act, 15 U.S.C. § 1052(e)(1), on the ground that Applicant’s applied-for matter is merely descriptive for the goods and services. In response to the refusal Applicant asserted acquired distinctiveness under Section 2(f). The Examining Attorney continued the refusal of mere descriptiveness, asserting that the applied-for matter is highly descriptive and the Section 2(f) showing was insufficient. In the November 10, 2014 Office action, the Examining Attorney refused registration as to the goods in Class 19 on the ground that the applied-for matter is generic or highly descriptive for such goods and as to the services in Class 37 that the applied-for matter is highly descriptive and the showing under Section 2(f) is insufficient to establish acquired distinctiveness.

Thus, the remaining issues for the Board to determine in Application Serial No. 85834316 are (1) whether MAGNESITA is generic for the goods in Class 19 or in the alternative merely descriptive and the 2(f) showing is insufficient, and (2) whether MAGNESITA is merely descriptive for the services in Class 37 and the 2(f) showing is insufficient.

When the refusals in both applications were made final, Applicant appealed and requested reconsideration. After the Examining Attorney denied the requests for reconsideration, the appeals were resumed and briefs were filed. We affirm the refusals to register.

Standard of review

As a preliminary matter, Applicant argues that the Board's "standard of review should be reconsidered in view of the Supreme Court's decision the case B&B Hardware, Inc. v. Hargis Industries, Inc., [135 S. Ct. 1293, 113 USPQ2d 204 (2015)]," and that the burden of persuasion should be on the Examining Attorney. 9 TTABVue 14 (App. Serial No. 85834316). We first point out that this is an ex parte appeal not inter partes litigation, which was the subject matter of the Court's decision in B&B Hardware v. Hargis. See In re Cordua Restaurants, Inc., ___ F.3d ___, ___ USPQ2d ___ n.2 (Fed. Cir. May 13, 2016) ("The [Supreme] Court held that issue preclusion did apply to a TTAB decision in an inter partes opposition proceeding, noting that the procedures there resembled the procedures of a district court. ... But there is no suggestion in B&B Hardware that an examiner's decision to register a mark or to refuse registration satisfies the traditional requirements of issue preclusion.").

In any event, the burden always has and continues to fall on the USPTO. It is the burden of the USPTO to establish a prima facie case for its refusals, which may be rebutted by an applicant. In the case of establishing genericness, the United States Patent and Trademark Office (USPTO) has the burden of establishing by clear evidence that a mark is generic and, thus, unregistrable. In re Hotels.com, 573 F.3d 1300, 91 USPQ2d 1532, 1533 (Fed. Cir. 2009). In the case of establishing acquired distinctiveness, the burden again falls on the USPTO to establish that the applied-for matter is merely descriptive, unless conceded by an applicant by not preserving its arguments based on inherent distinctiveness when amending to assert acquired distinctiveness. In re Pacer Technology, 338 F.3d 1348, 67 USPQ2d 1629, 1630 (Fed. Cir. 2007) (“It is well established that the PTO has the burden to establish a prima facie case of no inherent distinctiveness.”). Further, “[o]nce the PTO sets forth a sufficient prima facie case, the burden shifts to the applicant to come forward with evidence to rebut the prima facie case.” Id. at 1631. If an applicant rebuts a mere descriptiveness refusal by seeking registration based on acquired distinctiveness, it is applicant’s burden to establish a prima facie case of acquired distinctiveness. See Yamaha International Corp. v. Hoshino Gakki Co. Ltd., 840 F.2d 1572, 6 USPQ2d 1001 (Fed. Cir. 1988). Applicant does not point to any language in the B & B Hardware decision or elsewhere that shifts the burden of persuasion on the issue of acquired distinctiveness in an ex parte appeal from Applicant to the Examining Attorney. We observe that because acquired distinctiveness serves as a rebuttal to a mere descriptiveness refusal, the burden appropriately resides with Applicant. As a result, we find that it remains Applicant’s burden of demonstrating that a proposed mark has acquired distinctiveness under Section 2(f).<sup>3</sup> Yamaha, 6 USPQ2d at 1001.

Is MAGNESITA generic for the applied-for goods?

A generic term “is the common descriptive name of a class of goods or services.” Princeton Vanguard, LLC v. Frito-Lay N. Am., Inc., 786 F.3d 960, 114 USPQ2d 1827, 1830 (Fed. Cir. 2015) (quoting H. Marvin Ginn Corp. v. Int’l Ass’n of Fire Chiefs, Inc.,

<sup>3</sup> We further observe that acquired distinctiveness of a designation under Section 2(f) is not a “static target,” and an adverse decision by the Board on the issue of acquired distinctiveness does not preclude an applicant from the opportunity to later show that its proposed mark has acquired distinctiveness under Section 2(f) at a future date on a different record.

Second, is the term sought to be registered ... understood by the relevant public primarily to refer to that genus of goods or services?” Marvin Ginn, 228 USPQ at 530. See also Princeton Vanguard, 114 USPQ2d at 1829 (“there is only one legal standard for genericness: the two-part test set forth in Marvin Ginn”). “An inquiry into the public’s understanding of a mark requires consideration of the mark as a whole.” Id. at 1831 (quoting In re Steelbuilding.com, 415 F.3d 1293, 75 USPQ2d 1420, 1421 (Fed. In an ex parte appeal, as noted above the USPTO must establish by clear evidence that a mark is generic and, thus, unregistrable. In re Hotels.com, 91 USPQ2d at 1533; In re Gould Paper Corp., 834 F.2d 1017, 5 USPQ2d 1110, 1111 (Fed. Cir. 1987). “Doubt on the issue of genericness is resolved in favor of the applicant.” In re DNI Holdings Ltd., 77 USPQ2d 1432, 1437 (TTAB 2005).

We begin by finding that the genus at issue in this case is adequately defined by Applicant’s identification of goods, “Refractory products not made primarily of metal, namely, refractory bricks, refractory mixes for patching, lining or repairing high temperature apparatus and repairing the lining for furnaces, refractory furnace patching and repair mixes”; “and pre-cast refractory shapes” (“refractory products”). See Magic Wand Inc. v. RDB Inc., 940 F.2d 638, 19 USPQ2d 1551, 1552 (Fed. Cir. 1991) (“[A] proper genericness inquiry focuses on the description of [goods or] services set forth in the [application or] certificate of registration”). We further find that the “relevant public” consists of the public at large, namely, ordinary consumers who purchase such refractory products, which, as the record shows, ranges from retail purchasers of household products to industrial purchasers for commercial operations. We note that the record evidence reveals that Applicant’s customers are industrial operators, although the identification of goods is not so limited.

We turn then to determine whether MAGNESITA is understood by the relevant purchasing public as primarily referring to refractory products. In starting our analysis, we note that the foreign equivalent of a generic English term is no more registrable than the English term itself. “Under the doctrine of foreign equivalents, foreign words from common languages are translated into English to determine genericness, descriptiveness, as well as similarity of connotation in order to ascertain confusing similarity with English word marks.” *Palm Bay Imps. We find it appropriate to apply the doctrine of foreign equivalents in this case. There is no evidence of record suggesting that the translation in this application is inaccurate, that MAGNESITA is so obscure it would not be easily recognized and translated by Spanish, Portuguese or Italian speakers in the U.S. marketplace, or that it is an idiom which is not equivalent to its direct English translation. Also, there can be no doubt that Spanish, Portuguese and Italian are common, modern languages.<sup>5</sup> See Cordua Rests., Inc., ___ USPQ2d ___ (“Because ‘churrasco’ is a common word in Spanish and Portuguese and because the ‘191 Application itself concedes that ‘churrascos’ means ‘barbecue,’ the PTO would have been justified in translating ‘churrascos’ into ‘barbecue’ and subsequently determining whether the term ‘barbecue’ is generic when applied to restaurant services.”). Purchasers of refractory products familiar with Spanish, Portuguese or Italian are likely to “stop and translate” MAGNESITA when encountering it used in connection with refractory products. We, therefore, find Applicant’s mark to be equivalent to the English words “magnesite” and “magnesia” for purposes of determining genericness.

Applicant is described on its website as follows:

Magnesita is the most integrated refractory industry in the world ... Over 70% of the raw material used in production is taken from its own mines.<sup>6</sup>

Significantly, the record includes examples where magnesite or magnesia are used to name or refer to a type of refractory brick (e.g., magnesite brick, magnesia-chrome brick). Based on this evidence we have no doubt that potential purchasers familiar with Spanish, Portuguese or Italian would understand MAGNESITA to refer, at minimum, to a type of refractory brick, i.e., a magnesite brick. In re Central Sprinkler Co., 49 USPQ2d 1194 (TTAB 1998) (ATTIC generic for sprinklers because consumers would understand it to refer to a category of sprinklers). Has MAGNESITA acquired distinctiveness?

We turn to the remaining issues in Application Serial No. 85834316, i.e., whether the showing of acquired distinctiveness is sufficient to allow for registration of the merely descriptive term MAGNESITA for the goods or services.<sup>36</sup>

As noted above, in response to the mere descriptiveness refusals, Applicant submitted declarations asserting acquired distinctiveness. “[W]here registration was initially sought on the basis of distinctiveness, subsequent reliance by the applicant on Section 2(f) assumes that the mark has been shown or conceded to be merely descriptive.” Yamaha, 6 USPQ2d at 1001. Accordingly, Applicant’s claim of acquired distinctiveness is a concession that the mark is merely descriptive. *In re Cordua Rests. Moreover, Applicant has the burden to establish a prima facie case of acquired distinctiveness. Yamaha, 6 USPQ2d at 1006.

<sup>35</sup> In support of its position that MAGNESITA is not generic, Applicant submitted evidence that it found no use of the term MAGNESITA on English language websites. This is not surprising or probative given it is not an English word.

<sup>36</sup> In view of our finding that the applied-for matter is generic for the goods in International Class 19, the refusal of registration must be affirmed. But for completeness we address the alternative issue of whether Applicant’s proposed mark is merely descriptive and if it has acquired distinctiveness for those goods.

The amount and character of evidence required to establish acquired distinctiveness depends on the facts of each case and particularly on the nature of the mark sought to be registered. See Roux Labs., Inc. v. Clairol Inc., 427 F.2d 823, 166 USPQ 34, 39 (CCPA 1970). Where a mark is highly descriptive, more evidence is required. See, e.g., In re Steelbuilding.com, 75 USPQ2d at 1420 (“[T]he applicant’s burden of showing acquired distinctiveness increases with the level of descriptiveness; a more descriptive term requires more evidence of secondary meaning.”); In re Bongrain Int’l Corp., 894 F.2d 1316, 13 USPQ2d 1727, 1729 (Fed. Cir. 1990). Based on the evidence discussed above, we find that Applicant’s mark is highly descriptive as used in connection with its goods and services.

In support of its assertion of acquired distinctiveness in Application Serial No. 85834315, Applicant submitted:<sup>37</sup> (1) a declaration by Applicant’s outside counsel Thomas J. Summary

In summary, the applied-for matter is generic for refractory products in International Class 19 in Application Serial Nos. 77873477 and 85834316, and in the alternative in Application Serial No. 85834316 it is highly descriptive of the refractory products and the showing for acquired distinctiveness is insufficient. In addition, the applied-for matter is highly descriptive of the services in International Class 37 and the showing for acquired distinctiveness is insufficient in Application Serial No. 85834316.

Decision: The refusals to register Applicant’s proposed mark are affirmed in each application. Application Serial No. 85834316 is refused registration in both classes. The goods in International Class 19 in Application Serial No. 77873477 will be deleted and the application will be forwarded for registration of the services in Class 37 on the Supplemental Register.

NOTICE OF APPEAL TO THE CAFC

Magnesita Refractories Company (hereinafter “Appellant”) hereby petitions/appeals to the United States Court of Appeals for the Federal Circuit (CAFC) from the decision of the Trademark Trial and Appeal Board (“TTAB”) of the United States Patent and Trademark Office entered May 17, 2016, affirming the refusal to register Appellant’s trademark “MAGNESITA” regarding the U.S. Trademark Applications listed above. Appellant is dissatisfied with the decision because the TTAB did not reverse the refusal, and the TTAB does not require the filing of a Certificate of Interest as the CAFC does.

In accordance with Rules 15(b)(1) and 25(b)(1) of the Federal Circuit Rules, a Petition for Review will be filed through CM/ECF for the United States Court of Appeals for the Federal Circuit, together with the Court’s filing fee of $500. Furthermore, in accord with 37 C.F.R. 2.145 (January 16, 2015) and 104.2 (June 25, 2010), this Notice of Appeal has been served as stated in the following Certificate of Service.

Application Nos.: 77873477 and 85834316

NOTICE OF APPEAL TO THE CAFC

Magnesita Refractories Company (hereinafter “Appellant”) hereby petitions/appeals to the United States Court of Appeals for the Federal Circuit (CAFC) from the decision of the Trademark Trial and Appeal Board (“TTAB”) of the United States Patent and Trademark Office entered May 17, 2016, affirming the refusal to register Appellant’s trademark “MAGNESITA” regarding the U.S. Trademark Applications listed above. Appellant is dissatisfied with the decision because the TTAB did not reverse the refusal, and the TTAB does not require the filing of a Certificate of Interest as the CAFC does.

In accordance with Rules 15(b)(1) and 25(b)(1) of the Federal Circuit Rules, a Petition for Review will be filed through CM/ECF for the United States Court of Appeals for the Federal Circuit, together with the Court’s filing fee of $500. Furthermore, in accord with 37 C.F.R. 2.145 (January 16, 2015) and 104.2 (June 25, 2010), this Notice of Appeal has been served as stated in the following Certificate of Service.

U.S. Application Nos.: 77873477 and 85834316
NOTICE OF APPEAL TO THE CAFC

Respectfully submitted,
Magnesita Refractories Company
